How to Win Glory.
Big Strike Uncertain.
One Flower's Quick Work.
Making Her New Face.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE GRAND National, most important steeplechase, has been run, and won by Golden Miller, the favorite. To win the Grand National brings glory to the winner's owner. You acquire the glory as follows:

Buy a horse that somebody-else has bred, hire grooms to take care of it, a trainer to develop its running power, a jockey to risk his neck riding it. On the day of the race, be ready, with your black cutaway coat and silk hat, to lead your horse in, at arms length, amid wild applause IF it wins.

It's a convenient way to win glory, buying it with cash, usually inherited from a father, or some earlier ancestor.

THE AUTOMOBILE strike, that, if it comes, will give prosperity a set-back, and take a million dollars a day from the pockets of workers, still hangs in the balance.

When the automobile industry started, mechanics were getting one dollar and seventy-five cents a day. Now they get from four to seven dollars a day, some, very skillful, much more. The new industry has created good wages for at least two millions of men, directly and indirectly.

THIS HAS all been done by management of automobile companies, genius of engineers and industrialists, and the public's willingness to buy. It was not done by union labor, or trade union leadership, because, in spite of many efforts, unionism never entered the picture. It may have helped better wages, however, through the employers' fear of unionism.

If unions can take management from those that created the industry and do better for the workers, the public and the properties which they will control, they will show considerable ability.

IN THE New York flower show David Burpee exhibited a new double hybrid nasturtium, said to be worth $10,000. This specimen, which would ordinarily have taken three years to duplicate, was produced in eleven months, which means getting $10,000 sooner. Mr. Burpee sent the plants thousands of miles, from Philadelphia to Buenos Aires, for a certain season of intensive sunshine; then to Puerto Rico, for more sunshine. The plant responded by doing in eleven months the work of thirty-six months.

SOME DAY airplanes, supplying transportation at ten miles for a cent, three dollars from New York to San Francisco, will do for old men, invalids and children what Mr. Burpee did for his nasturtium.

Many will not believe that, but a little while ago they would not have believed that a woman would fly alone over the Andes, and before that they would not have believed that Uncle Sam would send letters for three cents from Key West to Seattle.

IN NEW YORK, with one thousand women looking on, all interested, some almost fainting, a "plastic surgeon" carved and changed the face of a twenty-three-year-old girl, announcing that his plan was to "give her a new, stronger personality."

The young woman, a sales girl, lost her job, could not find another, was assured that the "new personality" would attend to that.

No one would interfere in these NRA days with the profits of plastic surgeons, or the hopes of girls that want new faces, but it should be mentioned that "personality" is located deeper than the skin of the face. To create real personality, the surgeon would need to operate on some part of the brain, perhaps microscopic in size. That cannot be done.

GOOD NEWS for Japan: "The Philippine Islands approach freedom," that is, freedom from the United States. A bill to set the islands free has gone through Congress without objection.

It will not be long now before Japanese will gather in the Philippines and get the benefit of many millions that Uncle Sam has spent there, good roads and good schools that he has built. We can hardly tell Japan to keep out, unless we are ready to invent a Monroe Doctrine for Asia.

What can we reply when Japan says:

"If you don't want them I want them?"

IN MASSACHUSETTS, a little girl, four years old, was attacked by two dogs, Boston bull terriers. Pedestrians found the child with the dogs tearing her body. Physicians said she was "lacerated from head to foot." She died.

The dog may be "man's best friend," but he does not always prove it, in the case of children. Anybody who gives to a young child, as playmate, a police dog, closely related to the wolf, is risking the child's life, and should have brains enough to know it. The same is true of various other savage types of dog.

A BABY BOY named Reynolds, whose mother was a torch singer, his father mysteriously murdered, started life with $2,000,000, and, thanks to a Supreme Court decision, may have $10,000,000.

The world will hope that inherited wealth will turn out better for the torch singer's son than it did for that son's father.

14 MEN DIE AS REFUGE BURNS

Scores of Transients Injured; Deaths May Mount

International News Service.

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 24.—Fourteen persons were burned to death and 70 others were reported injured, many seriously, when fire swept the Transit Relief Bureau here today.

The dead were eight white men, five Negroes and another burned so badly he could not be classified. All were itinerant unemployed.

It was feared the death toll would mount, so badly burned were some of the injured.

There was no immediate identification of the dead. Practically all tenants of the bureau were from other cities.

The building, a weather-beaten two-story frame structure in the heart of the city, was a roaring furnace soon after the fire first broke out. Within a short time the building was destroyed.

VICTIMS TRAPPED

No women were housed in the bureau. The transient home was operated by the Civil Works Administration.

The building, formerly a furniture store, was of frame construction. It is believed the dead chiefly second floor occupants, were so trapped as to make escape impossible.

The fire started when a pot of grease, let simmering on a downstairs stove, ignited.

Firemen found fear-stricken men poised on window ledges of the second floor to leap to the street.

On the ground lay many injured, moaning and writhing.

FLAMING MAN LEAPS

One man, wrapped in blankets, ran to the window from the dormitory to throw himself to the street. Tongues of fire snapped at the blanket.

He plunged over the ledge, a flaming torch, and landed in a crumpled heap. Firemen beat out the flaming blankets with their bare hands. Aside from bruises, the man was uninjured.

The dead were taken to two mortuaries. Identification was difficult because the bureau's records were destroyed.

A rear wing of the blazing structure collapsed soon after the firefighters arrived.

The injured were distributed through three of the city's hospitals, which were swamped by the influx. Hurried calls for additional nurses and physicians were sent out.

Girl Sobs Wish To Wed Youth In Hex Slaying

International News Service.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 24.—Although the electric chair may tear him forever from the arms of Selina Bernstel, 20, his faithful sweetheart, Albert Shinsky, 24-year-old "hex' slayer, was a happy man today.

He told again how the bullet he fired through the heart of Mrs. Susan Mummey, had freed him from her "spell."

Selina hysterically offered to marry Shinsky when she visited him in his jail cell. She pleaded:

"I'll marry him now, right here, if they'll only let me."

Shinsky refused.

It was the first time the youthful slayer and his sweetheart had met since Shinsky killed Mrs. Mummey.

They had planned to be married Easter Sunday, she revealed. They made their wedding plans while Shinsky was suffering "tortures" at the hands of "witches and black cats" that he said Mrs. Mummey sent down from the skys to claw him.

Selina revealed she, too, had been "hexed." She said after Albert had told here of his troubles, Mrs. Mummey, in the form of a "green-eyed monster cat or a ghost draped in black," appeared at the foot of her bed. She was awakened by Albert's cries as in shadowy form he waved his arms near her bed.

MARGIOTTI IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Petitions for Davis' Attorney Out; Martin Ready to File

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, March 24.—Charles J. Margiotti, the fiery prosecutor who sent Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague to the electric chair for the murder of a state highway patrolman near New Castle, today entered the primary battle for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Nominating petitions for Margiotti, who maintains offices in Pittsburgh and Punxsutawney, were obtained here at the State Bureau of Elections by W. F. Smith, who left by plane for Pittsburgh.

Margiotti was chief counsel for United States Senator James J. Davis when he was on trial in Federal Court in New York on lottery charges last year.

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 24.—(AP.)—Gen. Edward Martin, state Republican chairman, said today he "probably" will file the petitions that have been circulated for him for the nomination for governor.

The fact that Lieutenant Governor Edward Shannon, his superior in command of the National Guard, also seeks the nomination will have no bearing on filing the petitions, Martin said.

ARBITRATION PROPOSAL ACCEPTED

Unions Again Scored By Manufacturers In Peace Parley

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP.)—Automobile manufactues, conferring with administration officials in an effort to prevent a strike in the industry, issued a statement today saying they had agreed by appointment of an impartial board to pass on labor grievances but they charged again that the labor unions intend to obtain a dominant position.

Despite the statement, administration officials expected a settlement within a few hours.

The manufacturers spoke in reply to reports that settlement of the strike depended only on willingness of the management to let the government check the union membership claims with payrolls and say whether they are correct. The statement said:

"If that is the only remaining issue, let there be no misunderstanding as to what it means.

METHOD PROTESTED

"It means that the union refuses to tell the manufacturers whom the union represents. It wants the right to act for employes without disclosing their authority from them. It is like a lawyer saying to you, 'I have a who is suing you. I won't tell

'FIND' HIDEOUT OF DILLINGER

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP.)—Police said today they believed they had found the abandoned hideout of John Dillinger, Indiana outlaw.

Mrs. R. H. Kelly, apartment building manager, identified photographs of Dillinger and his sweetheart, Pearl Elliott, as the couple who occupied an apartment from the day after his escape from the Crown Point jail, March 3, until last Wednesday.

Police described the apartment as a perfect hideout. A doorway led to the back steps, another to a hallway. A trap door led to the roof.

Dillinger's father was quoted as saying at his Morresville home that he had received two messages from his son recently.

LIMA, O., March 24.—(AP.)—Attorney General Philip Lutz, Jr., of Indiana, announced today that Harry Pierpont, Dillinger gangster awaiting death sentence here, told him Dillinger's escape from the Crown Point jail had been arranged to protect high Indiana officials in connection with the state prison break last September 26.

Clergyman 'Lost,' Safe On Visit

The Rev. Dr. Percy G. Kammerer, former dean of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Cathedral and now provost of Avon Old Farms, a boys' prep school at Avon, Conn., had the police looking for him today, although he was not missing.

Dr. Kammerer, in Pittsburgh for a visit, was reported missing this morning by Harmar D. Denny, Jr., former safety director. Police broadcast Dr. Kammerer's description. Fifteen minutes later Denny reported Dr. Kammerer had been found.

Dr. Kammerer, police later said, left the Joseph Dilworth home, 5601 Aylesboro avenue, at midnight to return to the H. Carrol Fitzhugh residence, 807 Ridge avenue, where he had been a guest.

When he failed to appear at the Fitzhugh home at an early hour this morning, Denny called police.

Dr. Howell Resigns As Sewickley Rector

The Rev Dr. A. C. Howell, for 26 years rector of the fashionable St. Stephen's Church at Sewickley, has resigned due to ill health, it was learned today. His resignation has been given to the vestrymen. Dr. Howell became rector of St. Stephen's in 1908, coming here from Yonkers, N. Y. He was a World War chaplain. For the past year his health has not been of the best. He plans to remove with his wife and three sons to a country home in New York state.

TRACY GUARDED AFTER THREATS

HOLLYWOOD, March 24.—(AP.)—Police disclosed today they were investigating the delivery to Spencer Tracy, film actor, of threatening letters seeking to extort $8,000 from him.

The letters, detectives said, warned that he or his two children would be harmed if the money were not paid. One letter was received February 23 and another March 5. Detectives attempted to arrange a rendezvous with the writer, but were unsuccessful.

The detectives said one letter threatened a young actress with whom he has been seen since his separation from his wife last summer.

Police would not disclose the identity of the actress. Columnists have commented frequently on the actor's attentions to Loretta Young.

Actress Lends Car For Ex-Kin to Wed

HOLLYWOOD, March 24.—(AP.)—In an automobile lent her by Esther Ralston, her former stepmother, Blanche Frey, 20, screen actress, eloped to Ventura and was married yesterday to Arnold Luff, 22-year-old actor.

The bride is the daughter of George Webb Frey, actor and theatrical agent, known professionally as George Webb, from whom Miss Ralston was divorced a few weeks ago.

Fleeing Suspect Shot by Officer

Alleged to have been fleeing from a grocery at 1700 Wylie avenue, where a window had been broken, Sylvester Green, 35, a Negro, of 2040 Webster avenue, was shot in the thigh by a special officer early today, according to police.

P. A. Henry, Negro special policeman, said he fired at Green when the latter refused to obey a command to halt. Green was taken to Passavant Hospital.

Brain Trust 'Plot' Quiz Sought

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP.)—A Congressional investigation of allegations made in a letter by Dr. William A. Wirt, of Gary, Ind., that "brain trusters" were seeking to overthrown the government was advocated today by Representative Bulwinkle (Dem.), of North Carolina.

Bulwinkle, a member of the House Interstate Commerce Committee before which the letter was read yesterday by James H. Rand, Jr., chairman of the Committee for the Nation, said he would introduce a resolution calling for the inquiry.

Representative Marland (Dem.), of Oklahoma, also told reporters he favored the investigation to learn "just who these men are who claim to be making decisions for President Roosevelt."

GARY, Ind., March 24.—(INS.)—If formally summoned, Dr. William A. Wirt said today he would go to Washington and disclose the names of members of the administration's "brain trust" who, he says, boasted of a program to upset the American governmental system.

Dr. Wirt, superintendent of schools here, stood by his statements read before a congressional committee.

STRIKE SAVES SCHOOL JOBS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 24.—Conemaugh high school students, backed by their parents, won their strike demands last night when the School Board agreed to tender contracts for the next terms to four teachers it had proposed to drop. A committee of students and taxpayers met with the board, the session continuing until 1:15 a. m. today.

The teachers reinstated are L. B. Derrickson, Bess Wishinger, Margaret Hetrick and Francis Baird. Six new teachers also were elected, completing the staff for the 1934-35 term. Ed Leaf was retained as athletic coach and physical director. An invitation to Harry Sweeney to assist as coach was recalled.

At Franklin, in an adjacent borough, the student strike remains unchanged, pending a meeting of students, parents and the school board tomorrow afternoon. In Ferndale, where the entire staff of 30 teachers were notified their contracts would terminate at the close of school this year, less than 25 per cent of the 400 strikers signed a petition presented to members of the board last night to retain the teachers. The spirit of the strike there seems faltering.

LAGUARDIA ACTS FOR TAXI PEACE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia today had delivered a sharp ultimatum in an effort to bring to a sudden halt the strike of more than 5,000 taxicab drivers, which has resulted in an unprecedented wave of violence.

The Mayor ordered representatives of both the strikers and the operating companies to appear at City Hall for a conference. Failure of either side to comply, the Mayor said, would result in the shouldering of the blame by that faction for continued "chaos and disorder." He declared:

"An immediate and permanent settlement of existing differences in the taxicab industry is of the utmost importance."

Meanwhile sporadic attacks by roving bands of strikers on working drivers appeared to have been halted by efficient police action. All day yesterday and last night, mounted and foot patrolmen deployed in mititary fashion at key points in the city.

Two Civil War Cannon Balls Stolen

Police today are looking for two cannon balls, each weighing 60 pounds, stolen last night from the Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall grounds.

C. H. Ruhe, superintendent of the building, reported to Oakland police today that the balls were made for use in the Civil War. Several nights ago, according to Ruhe, the balls had been rolled pell-mell over the grounds.

Police suspect they may find the missing balls in one of the college fraternities. The frats are initiating new members these days.

Mother, 2 Girls Feared Dead in Snow Found

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 24.—(AP.)—Safe and well was the word brought today of a mother and her two small daughters, for whom an anxious posse spent all night hunting in the lonely Cheat Mountains.

Mrs. Pearl McNear, who left a note behind saying she intended to "kill herself and old Cheat River will find my body," brought the two children to Oakland last night.

While lanterns flickered over the snow-swept crags of Chestnut Ridge in a fruitless search for the trio and as searchers gave them up as dead, they were being fed by a kindly lunch wagon owner in Oakland.

Later they went to relief headquarters and today officers took them in charge.

The trio went to a friend's home near Terra Alta but learning that the husband, a miner, had asked a search be made, they started to Oakland. There Mrs. McNear was to meet a cousin by marriage, Jack Filmore, who had her suitcase and her money.

Filmore did not appear, she told relief headquarters.

A few hours after the little family left the house Tuesday, a snowstorm swept over the mountains but the miner husband did not spread an alarm for two days, hoping his wife and children would come back.

Chased at Model Home, McCready Takes 'Cure'

Playboy Harrison McCready was taken to St. Francis Hospital shortly before midnight by a Lawrenceville policeman, who found him leaning against a building in the 4600 block in Penn avenue.

Hospital officials told police McCready "had been drinking." The playboy said he wanted to remain for the night.

Several hours earlier he had been released from Central Police Station, after he had been arrested for intoxication as he appeared at the dedication of McNair Manor, near the county jail.

When his name was called for hearing in Central Police Court, McCready failed to appear and forfeited five dollars.

Wagonman Ira Bing said he had just reported off duty at Lawrenceville Police Station and was en route home when McCready stopped him and asked to be taken to the hospital. Bing obliged.

No charge was preferred against the "patient."

(Details of the dedication of Mayor McNair's model home—also known as the "McCready memorial"—appear on Page Three.)

you who it is, but I will bargain for him.'

"No outside agency can check the union claims against the payroll, can come to any fair decision without disclosing the names to the manufacturers.

"The union's refusal to say whom it represents is just another indication of its purpose to dominate industry.

"All the union would have to do is to coerce men into signing union applications.

"The public should know that this refusal on the part of the union to say whom the union represents is tfihe same issue of union domination in another form.

DISCRIMINATION ISSUE

"The union said that if it tells the manufacturers whom it represents, there will be discrimination against union members. On the contrary the manufacturers have agreed to an impartial board to pass on any cases of alleged discrimination and to have its findings reviewed by a board created by NRA. Thus, there is no warrant for the unions' claims that there will be discrimination."

Observers held the opinion that the last paragraph strongly suggested the basis for agreement would avoid the holding of elections in the plants at this time and instead would involve submission of union lists to both the government and the manufacturers under an absolute pledge of nondiscrimination against the men whose names would thus be revealed.

Officials, however, refused to say that this was the basis of the plan they were trying to put through.

RAIL WAGE DISPUTE

There was apparently high hope within the administration today that the end of the railroad wage row was approaching an end.

Joseph B. Eastman, the federal co-ordinator of transportation, said the rail managers would meet the union spokesmen again today to seek an end of the controversy. Smiling, he said the managers had accepted at least part of the program of settlement.

Auto Labor Defers Strike; Employers Boost Wages

DETROIT, March 24.—(AP.)—Union workers set aside their strike plans for the third time this week, and went about their tasks in automobile factories today while employers hastened a policy of shorter hours and higher wages.

The latest postponement of the strike came after union leaders conferring with President Roosevelt telegraphed their locals that substantial progress was being made toward settlement.

In 14 automobile and body factories office forces were at work today on the final details of the new work-wage schedules recommended two weeks ago by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. An announcement indicated that under the new plan, expected to be in effect in at least 14 of the chamber's 31 member firms by March 31, the worker will put in an average of 36 hours a week instead of 40 and will get compensating wage increases.

If all members of the N. A. C. C. follow the recommendation the new plan will benefit some 183,000 workers.

CHILD LABOR BAN ASSAILED

Arthur M. McCrillis, president general of the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, speaking at a dinner of the organization in Hotel Schenley last night, urged members to work against the proposed child labor amendment to the United States Constitution. He branded the proposal, as "a step toward a regimented state."

He characterized as "Benedict Arnolds to the Constitution" all pacifists, internationalists, Socialists, Communists and the American Civil Liberties Union, saying:

'The child labor amendment is not a child labor amendment at all. It gives Congress unlimited power over 45,000,000 persons under 18, and was launched by persons of Communistic tendencies."

HOTEL STRIKE END SEEN

With a settlement of the strike at the William Penn Hotel believed near at hand, strikers were ready today to storm the hotel and demand their jobs back.

Following a series of conferences lasting all day yesterday, it was reliably learned that the strikers and the management were not far apart in their demands. A final conference was scheduled for 11 a. m., following which strike leaders will plan their next move, they said.

Today has been set as a "deadline" by the Regional Labor Board which has ordered both sides to settle the strike. A. C. Jewett, secretary, called Councilman John J. Kane into one of yesterday's conferences with attorneys representing the hotel and the strikers.

The strikers, who paraded through the downtown business district yesterday afternoon, made two demonstrations at the hotel last night. One was staged as a so-called "reception" for the benefit of those attending the Pitt military ball.

Another Party Of Republicans Bolt Democrats

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Here's a strange kettle of affairs.

Republicans are threatening to bolt the Democratic party.

They're the Roosevelt G. O. P. and all progressive Republicans. Everything was sitting as pretty as a tourist on the sun deck until Jim Farley cracked about Broughton being the Democratic hope for Wisconsin.

That got La Follette angry. He led the stampede to the cloak room where once the Republicans roved in countless numbers.

With the overcoats in the majority, seconded by the empty hats, they laid the groundwork for a third independent fusion-filibuster organization.

That's how parties are born.

Weather Grounds Air Mail Planes

NEW YORK, March 24.—(INS.)—Murky skies and generally bad flying weather today interfered with the dispatch of the air mails from some of the local airports and many air mail cargoes were sent by train.

As the bad weather moved rapidly east and north from the Midwest, the flight of the Washington mail planes from Newark, N. J., was canceled early in the day. Many of the flights to the South had been previously canceled.

STAVISKY GEMS IN PAWN SHOP

PARIS, March 24.—(AP.)—The missing Stavisky jewels—worth $650,000—were reported found today pawned in London.

A secret service man followed the trail of the late Serge Stavisky's secretary, Romagnino, who went to London while Parisian newspapers were clamoring for his arrest.

A detective discovered the jewels and the fact that they had been used as security for a loan of $40,000.

The loan, it was said, was made after the police net started to close down on France's master swindler and before he died from a revolver shot in a villa at Chamonix.

NAVY BILL GOES TO ROOSEVELT

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—President Roosevelt said last night he will sign the Vinson bill for building up the Navy to treaty strength, recently passed by Congress, when it reaches him, probably today.

The bill is termed by Navy men a "carefully thought out plan to bring the American Navy up to treaty strength."

Under the first year's plan for making this nation's Navy second to none by 1939, 12 destroyers and six submarines are to be built at a cost of approximately 20 million dollars.

Provisions already have been made in the naval appropriations bill for construction of one heavy and three light cruisers.

BUFFALO FEAST FOR PRISONERS

Because a young bull buffalo in South Park broke his leg and had to be shot, here's what the 577 prisoners in the county jail and Parkview jail farm will eat tomorrow for dinner:

Mashed potatoes.

Raisin bread.

The man who does the carving will get an extra half pound of meat.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern gave the buffalo to the prisoners.

PUSH LOW-RATE VET PAY BILL

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP.)—Senate administration leaders predicted the Senate would approve today the less liberal House federal pay provision of the independent offices bill. The question whether another conference would be necessary to resolve differences over veterans' benefits depended on Senate action on that thorny issue.

A partial conference agreement on the bill was adopted by the Senate yesterday, leaving only the disagreements over fededal pay and veterans' provisions unsettled.

'Ma' Ferguson Frees 'Honor Slayer'

AUSTIN, Tex., March 24.—(AP.)—Protection for womanhood was promised by Texas' woman governor, Miriam A. Ferguson, in issuing a complete pardon to a 60-year-old father in an 'honor slaying."

Gov. Ferguson yesterday lifted the two-year penitentiary sentence imposed upon J. R. Readhimer for the murder of young Stokes Campbell, allegedly the father of a child born to Readhimer's daughter. Campbell had refused to marry the girl.

In releasing Readhimer, Gov. Ferguson said:

"If he lives a thousand years he would probably never commit another offense like this because his youngest daughter has been ruined and no reform is possible because this defendant is now in old age and punishment in the penitentiary means but little to him personally, but the support of his family, if he had to go, would but add to the humiliation which it now suffers."

She added:

"Would his pardon suppress crime declared to be one of the objects of the law? Maybe it will. It will at least be a grave warning to these young debauchers of womanhood who run around this country seeking whom they may ruin with no attempt to keep their passion within bounds."

AIR MAIL BILL PROVISIONS MODIFIED

M'Kellar Predicts Favorable Report In Few Days

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP.)—Chairman McKellar, of the Senate Postoffice Committee predicted today that his revised permanent air mail bill would be reported favorably to the Senate floor within the next few days.

Study of the measure, containing many criticized provisions, will begin today if possible, he said.

The bill, which is understood to contain modifications recommended by the administration, was offered in the Senate yesterday by both McKellar and Chairman Black, of the air mail investigating committee.

It was considered significant that this step came soon after an airmail conference by the President, Attorney General Cummings and officials of the Postoffice and Commerce departments the day before.

Although several drastic provisions of the original bill are somewhat softened, and former mail carriers would not be required to drop claims against the government before bidding again, the new measure retains many of the clauses which have aroused controversy in the committee.

The new bill, like the old, would require reorganization of the companies whose officers participated in the now famous air mail conference held by former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown.

Nor is there an backing down from the stand that mail lines must be free from all affiliation with other units of the industry. This would result in a virtual dismemberment of the large aviation systems, with their interlocking companies.

European Peace Rests With Britain, Alarmed By Rearmed Germany

Editor's Note—Great Britain is alarmed and in Great Britain's hands rests the answer of "Will War Come" writes H. R. Knickerbocker in the thirty-fifth article of his series Will War Come."

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER,

International News Service.

LONDON, March 24.—French statesmen may be alarmed, Italian statesmen may be alarmed. A dozen European chancelleries may echo with anxious prophecies. But when British statesmen are alarmed, it means dark days for Europe.

Britain is alarmed today. She is alarmed as she has never been since Tirpitz and his Navy League built the German fleet into a challenge to British security.

Again today Britain is alarmed at Germany, this time not led by Wilhelm II but by Adolf Hitler; this time not officered by Admiral Tirpitz, but by Gen. Goering; this time not at German submarines but at German bombers.

Britain holds the key to the date of the future war in Europe. If she allies herself with France today, openly declares to Germany that Britain and France will fight side by side at the drop of the German hat, the war may be postponed indefinitely.

If she repeats her conduct in the tense years, months and days immediately preceding the last war, giving Germany the illusion that she will remain neutral, the war may be accelerated by years.

Britain and France together may give Germany pause that need never be ended by war. Britain aloof, undecided, may give Germany encouragement that could only end in war.

European Nations Look to Britain

This is not the opinion of an individual. It is the opinion of the responsible leaders of France, Italy, Jugoslavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, of Belgium, Switzerland, Holland, Denmark. And today it is the consensus of a growing body of public opinion in Britain itself.

"Everything depends on Britain." What will Britain do?"

This is the statement and this is the question that dominate the thoughts of Europe. The question is one that Berlin asks with no less interest than Paris. For Hitler's foreign policy was based on the belief that Germany could win the benevolent neutrality if not the active friendship of Britain.

Today for the first time Britain herself is preparing an answer. That answer perhaps is foreshadowed in the British House of Commons. That tribune is one of the last resorts of democracy in this part of the world. It is so for one reason because of its unfailing restraint. In that tribune alarms are seldom. Napoleon brought one. Tirpitz brought one. Today Hitler has evoked strange voices from the least excitable of nations.

Fear Being Voiced In Parliament

Listen to the voices of Britain:

Col. Josiah Wedgwood (Labor) in the House:

"Everybody knows today that our danger is from Germany... England faces today a danger greater than when the Germans crossed into Belgian territory in 1914."

Capt. Frederick Guest (Conservative) in the House:

"If Belgium is frightened, why should we ignore her warning? She thinks that in less than 18 months Germany can, if she persists in her rearmament, be as strong as France is today."

But listen to that British Demosthenes, Winston Churchill:

"Now that the hideous air war has cast the shadow of its wings over the harassed civilization of the twentieth century no one can pretend that by any measures which we could take it would be possible to give absolute protection against an aggressor dropping bombs in this island and killing a great many unarmed men, women and children.

"Germany is arming fast and no one is going to stop her... That seems quite clear. No one proposes a preventive war to prevent Germany breaking the Treaty of Versailles. She is going to arm, she is doing it, she has been doing it.

'Germany Ruled By Autocrats'

"Germany is ruled—I am going to pick my words so that there is no word of offence put in—by a handful of autocrats who are the absolute masters of that mighty, gifted nation. They are men who have neither the long interests of a dynasty to consider, for what that is worth, —and sometimes it is worth something,—nor have they those very important restraints which a democratic parliament and constitutional system impose upon any executive government.

"Nor have they the restraint of public opinion, which public opinion, indeed, they control by every means which modern apparatus renders possible. They are men who owe their power to the bitterness of defeat, who are indeed, the expression of the bitterness of defeat, and of the resolved and giant strength of that mighty, that tremendous German empire.

"I dread the day when the means of threatening the heart of the British Empire should pass into the hands of the present rulers of Germany. I dread that day, but it is not perhaps, far distant. It is perhaps only a year, or perhaps 18 months distant."

Encouragement Voiced By Army Man

One single note of encouragement from Capt. Robert Cunningham-Reid: (Conservative).

"We have a machine today that can go four miles up in the air within 17 minutes of the alarm being given. Those 17 minutes include the giving of an alarm when one is not expected, the waking of the pilot, his dressing, getting to his machine, warming up the engine, getting off the airdrome and going up to a height of four miles. To be able to do that is one of the most amazing achievements of modern engineering."

Finally, the word of authority, the word of Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council. Steady, explanatory, reassuring but all the more impressive in its quiet appreciation of danger:

"The great peril of the air is the attempt of any given nation under any impulse to get a knockout blow in early and to decide the war as some people say . . . I am convinced that whatever be the ultimate motive that makes Germany at this moment so anxious for her air force—it may be as some say, altruistic ideas alone or as others say, from a feeling of national pride—under all these feelings, do not let us make any mistake, there is the same feeling of apprehension of her people which my right honorable friend showed that we all feel about London."

And in conclusion, a conclusion that contains the principal factor for an answer to the question: "Will War Come in Europe?" the Lord President ends:

"I say that if all our efforts to bring about disarmament of limitation of armaments fail, this government will see to it that in air strength and air power this country shall no longer be in a position inferior to any nation within striking distance of our shores."

This debate the "Observer" called "the ablest and gravest discussion of national defense heard in the House of Commons since the war." It was compared to the debate on German naval armament in 1909. Out of that debate came a stronger British navy, but no public alliance with France. The stronger British navy helped end the war but with no public Anglo-French alliance it could not keep the war from starting.

France Fearful Of Arms 'Poison'

But France, as one of its greatest statesmen said to this writer:

"France today is like the Persian who has been condemned to death and receives on a silver tray a bottle of poison, a rope and a dagger. The condemned is asked to choose the instrument of his own destruction.

"The British disarmament plan asks us to come down in armaments and permits Germany to come up. That is the poison The Italian disarmament plan permits us to keep our present arms but would allow Germany to arm up to meet us. That is the rope. The Germans themselves choose none of them."

Germany will only accept a limitation of armaments that would permit her to rearm to the French level. France will give her consent to German rearmament only if Britain promises beforehand to stand with France in military alliance against Germany. For the French, Britain's pacted word at Locarno to defend France against German aggression is not enough. France wants a fresh pledge, made post-Hitler.

Eighteen months ago only France asked security against Germany. Britain scoffed at French fears. Today, since Hitler came, the British foreign office understands and British leaders in general are beginning to appreciate French fears. For Britain herself feels the need of security.

They call it here in the highest official circles "grave anxiety" that is the equivalent in American to alarm.

The permanent staff of the British foreign office, if not the minister, realizes today that in all probability Britain will not only have to arm upward, but ought to pact with France. British public opinion, lagging, only knows that it is time to arm.

U. S. TO REMAIN ALOOF IN ARMS STALEMATE

French Insist Pact Must Guarantee Security

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP.)—The United States will continue to sit on the international sidelines as an interested spectator while European nations worry over disarmament questions.

Such was the reaction of American officials to the disarmament stalemate resulting from the French reply to Great Britain's suggestions for an arms agreement based on consultative pacts.

France, in the note, insisted that consultative pacts were not sufficient to guarantee France security. In blunt language the note emphasized that security was a preliminary to any disarmament action and insisted that to achieve security the nations must agree to use pressure.

President Roosevelt let it be known that the position of the United States with regard to consultative pacts was unchanged. The position adopted by the United States at the outset of disarmament discussions was that this nation would join other nations in a consultative pact for discussion of international problems, but would not sign any agreement requiring the United States to use force of arms in the settlement of any dispute.

PARIS, March 24.—(AP.)—A revival of the old Entente Cordiale which brought Great Britain into the World War is sought by France in a secret communication to London elaborating on an arms note.

If British gauarantees of aid against an aggressor are not forthcoming, the note makes it plain that the Geneva Disarmament Conference is at an end.

It leaves the door open, however, for a new conference which would recognize and limit German rearmament, limit the arms of other countries and settle the security question.

STATE OPENS AUTO DRIVE

HARRISBURG, March 24.—(AP.)—Capt. Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, had said today that 300 men have been assigned to a state-wide check on motor vehicle inspections, registrations and operators' licenses.

He said "By the end of the month we expect to have an accurate idea regarding the extent of illegal operation of motor vehicles and to have eliminated the customary alibi that owners did not realize the time for having their cars inspected was so near its end."

HARRISON M'CREADY OFFERS TO LIVE IN CITY'S MODEL HOME

PLAYBOY MEETS 'REBUFF' AT CEREMONY

Father Cox, Moritz Flay Newspapers In Speeches

McNair Manor, as the little cottage in the shadow of the county jail finally has been designated, today stands endowed with the dignity of dedication.

A very surprising dedication it was, in view of the fact that the $700 model house built by the city to show what can be done toward better housing gave way to Pittsburgh's newspapers in the oratorical spotlight.

Mayor McNair was there, with his secretary, Theodore Moritz, and Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's. For a wavering moment, so was Harrison McCready, fun-loving ex-director of homemaking. Color was added by a band and a public address truck.

M'CREADY POSTS BAIL

McCready, all set to recite "Home, Sweet Home," met rebuff at the foot of the speakers' stand and wound up at police headquarters on a charge of drunkenness. He was released later on a $5 forfeit and failed to show up for a hearing.

Before departing he announced he would proffer a lot as a permanent site, and, if the suggestion met with administration approval, would become the manor's first occupant, despite the bathtub.

Speeches were brief and to the point, but somehow the point wasn't the anticipated one—and the newspapers came to the fore.

The newspapers, it developed, are wolves parading in sheep's clothing, to the minds, at least, of Mr. Moritz and Father Cox.

HOUSE IS 'IDEA'

In ringing phrases delivered from atop the public address truck, they expressed their opinions to a crowd of several hundred curious.

Mr. Moritz pointed to the tiny white cottage and said:

"This little house is more than four walls. It's an idea. And the newspapers have the nerve to ridicule it."

He called them "poor saps," revealed they "burn me up" and told the assemblage they "don't say the truth about the Mayor because he won't let them dictate to him."

Father Cox, equally scorching, said:

"Some newspapers are trying to give the impression the Mayor is going around in circles. And only because they can't do what they've been doing the last 50 or 60 years—dominate the Mayor.

"When you don't go along with the man you elect it's your own fault. If you don't have a job it's because you don't go along and are ruled instead by a lot of filthy newspapers."

The Mayor, accompanied by his daughter, Betty, spoke briefly and mildly.

Following the speechmaking the house was opened for inspection and distribution of single tax literature by the theory's aged adherant, Francis W. Maguire.

A police horse lifted its head and whinnied loudly as the ceremony ended.

GINGER ROGERS SUES N. B. C.

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—(AP.)—Remarks of several persons including one who allegedly represented her in a radio broadcast were claimed today by Ginger Rogers, screen player, to have injured her standing in the profession.

Naming the National Broadcasting Company, Station KFI, a bread company and Sylvia Ulbeck, Hollywood masseuse, as defendants, Miss Rogers filed suit yesterday asking $100,000 in damages as a result of the alleged broadcast. She charged that in a broadcast on March 20, she was represented as being interviewed by a film director at a studio.

The person representing her talked of being tired of comedy parts and expressed a desire for dramatic roles, it was alleged, the director responding that she was not suited for heavy drama. The masseuse, she claimed, advised her to take a rest and go on a diet, including bread of the company advertised.

Truck, Wagon Crash, Father and Son Hurt

Two hucksters were injured when their wagon was sideswiped by a truck in Second avenue, near Bates street, late yesterday. They were Max Rosenson, 49, and his, son, Harry, 22, both of 519 Overhill street. They were taken to Mercy Hospital.

McNair Lauds Mrs. Felix In 'Her' Prepared Speech

Deletes Only Portion Of Talk Honoring Moritz' 'Foe'

Mayor McNair has shown what he means by political independence.

In a speech before the Jefferson Club last night in the William Penn Hotel, McNair praised Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democratic candidate for Congress, and apponent of Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary.

He was the only man allowed in the room.

The Mayor revealed yesterday he had received a prepared speech from Mrs. Felix and that all he needed to do was sign it and send it back for release to the newspapers. The Mayor said:

"We can release it right now, but I'll have to go through it and take out all the parts that are too laudatory to Mrs. Felix."

Questioned on whether a speech for Mrs. Felix was not direct opposition to Moritz, the Mayor said:

"Everyone at City Hall is free to support whom they please, politically. Yes, that applies to even the Mayor."

As it turned out, the Mayor read all of the prepared speech with the exception of one paragraph and elaborated profusely.

He explained his conduct at City Hall. He blamed it on the weakness of the Democratic party. He said:

"This is a pretty weak party, you know. We've got to use the tools at hand.

"If I get on the front page and look ridiculous—give me a chance. I'm only playing the game."

CRACK FLYER DERAILED

RAWLINS, Wyo., March 24.—(AP.)—Two enginemen were injured and an undetermined number of passengers were slightly hurt and shaken up when the locomotive and eight coaches of the crack Union Pacific passenger train, the Portland Rose, plunged off the rails 30 miles east of here late last night.

The derailment hurled the engine on its side and upended several coaches.

Dr. Raymond Barber, a Rawlins physician, went to the scene with company officials to give first aid to injured passengers. He said none suffered hurts more serious than bruises and scratches.

The train was the first section of the westbound flyer which operates between Chicago and Portland, Ore.

Former U. S. Court Justice's Son Dies

NEW YORK, March 23.—(AP.) John Maynard Harlan, 89, retired lawyer and son of the late John Marshall Harlan, former associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, died yesterday after a prolonged illness.

He was born in Frankfort, Ky., and shortly after the Civil War moved with the family to Louisville where they remained until the elder Harlan was named to the Supreme Court in 1877, when they went to Washington.

BELIEVE AGENT GUIDING INSULL

PORT SAID, Egypt, March 24.—(AP.)—The belief grew today that some secret agent was warning Samuel Insull against putting in at Port Said in the Greek freighter in which he has been expected here for days.

From many sources had come reports that Insull was not far out in the Mediterranean and the arrival of his extensively-chartered vessel, the Maiotis, was expected by many late yesterday.

Today, however, as hours passed with no news of the craft on which Insull is seeking some new haven from extradition to the United States, port authorities relaxed their watch.

It was believed generally that Insull was awaiting the signal to proceed to Port Said, though why there should be any delay was not altogether clear. It is understood he could not be taken into custody as long as he remains aboard ship.

Should Greek authorities consent, expert opinion here is Insull could be seized, held under the jurisdiction of the American consul and placed aboard a vessel bound for the United States. But if the Greek consulate has orders to permit such a procedure, the fact is being kept secret.

BANKING FEES REDUCED IN NEW CODE

Clearing House Group Sends NRA Plan To Johnson

Pittsburgh bankers have drawn up a new code which greatly reduces service charges from the schedule proposed in the original code late last year and which was rejected by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator.

A special code committee of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association has sent the new code to Washington for approval, it was learned yesterday.

The code covers the operation of member banks of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association. It is understood that another code has been submitted by Group 8 of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, which covers the operations of bankers in this district who are not members of the clearing house. Banks within the city which are not clearing house members have the option of adopting either the clearing house code or the Group 8 code.

CHANGES LISTED

The principal charges made by the code are as follows:

A base charge of $1 a month will be made on checking accounts with an average daily balance of less than $100. The previous code assessed this charge on accounts with less than $200.

Accounts from $100 to $199 will be subject to a base charge of 50 cents a month.

Accounts in both these classifications will be entitled to 15 checks a month. An additional charge of 5 cents per check will be made when more checks are drawn.

NO DEPOSIT CHARGE

No charge will be made for deposits. The original code provided for an assessment for deposits as well as withdrawals.

All accounts with daily ledger balances of less than $1,000 will be subject to graduated or metered service charges, details of which have not been made public.

Larger accounts and accounts where there is special activity may have service charges to be determined by special analysis to be based on the cost of operations.

Few changes are to be made in regulations applying to savings accounts. Interest will be at the rate of 3 per cent.

No mention is made in the new code of Christmas savings accounts. The original code abolished interest on these accounts. It is considered improbable that interest will be paid on accounts of this type.

CRASH NOTHING AMELIA SAYS

En route from New York to fill speaking engagements in Ohio, Amelia Earhart, noted flier, spent last night in the William Penn Hotel and prepared to depart this morning.

This time she drove her automobile, explaining that the weather was not suitable for flying. She said she drove her automobile into the back of one in front of her while traffic was jammed as result of a collision near Ebenburg. Miss Earhart said:

"It was nothing at all. The car in front stopped suddenly and I hit it. No damage at all. The other wreck was terrible, and I stopped at a police substation to report it, but there wasn't any police there."

Fall From Hay Load Fatal to Farmer

Charles Thomas, 68, a farmer of R. D. 1, Sewickley, died in Suburban General Hospital early today from injuries suffered when he fell from a load of hay last Friday. After being taken to the hospital he developed pneumonia.

Plunging Auto Struck by Train, Driver Injured

An automobile driven by Walter A. Arend, 25, of 5004 Broad street, struck an iron telephone pole, went over a small embankment on East Ohio street near Millvale and was struck by the Detroit flyer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad early today, Millvale police reported.

Arend was taken to St. Francis Hospital in a serious condition. He suffered a possible skull fracture, lacerations of the scalp and a deep gash in his neck.

En route home, Arend suddenly swerved his car and hit the pole, police said. The auto dropped several feet to the tracks and was struck by the eastbound train.

The impact demolished the auto.

Anthony Reid, 68, 7929 Tioga street, died in Pittsburgh Hospital early today from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile driven by Paul Galbo, 1314 Leishman street, New Kensington, at Lincoln avenue and Odessa street, Wednesday, according to a coroner's report.

Four persons, including two girls, were injured last night when their automobile struck a Woods Run street car at West North and Allegheny avenues, North Side.

George Hufnagel, 17, of Pine Hollow road; Catherine Morrison, 21, of 334 East North avenue, and Florence Ware, 25, of 1008 Western avenue, were riding in an automobile driven, police said, by William H. Leslie, 24, Pine Hollow road, when the accident occurred.

Universal Service.

PARIS, March 24.—Three women and two men, fugitives, wanted in the investigation of France's international spy ring, are believed to be hiding in the United States, it is learned.

Names of the fugitives were disclosed by Paris authorities, who have forwarded them to American federal agents along with a request for their extradition to France. The fugitives, linked to spy activities covering American Atlantic seaboard defenses, were identified as:

Abraham Marcovitz, A. R. Rishky, Anne Svorc, Mme. Raila Englard, missing Bessarabian student, and another woman known as Mme. Pumper.

At the same time Examining Magistrate Andre Benon pushed at top speed his investigation of the ring, in which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz are said to have implicated themselves with startling "confessions."

On the verge of a nervous breakdown, Prof. Louis Martin was said to have made "important admissions" to Benon, while Col. Dumoulin was said to have admitted he was a Communist in close touch with Moscow.

BIRDS EXPOSED TO 'FEVER' LOCATED

All But Five Parrots In Contact With Victims Found

All but five parrots suspected of having been in contact with birds suffering from psittacosis (parrot fever) have been located, it was announced today by the Department of Health.

At the same time it was declared by the Allegheny County Medical Society that the epidemic is "definitely under control."

In the absence of Director Ray P. Moyer, who was in Washington yesterday conferring with the United States Public Health Service officials regarding the outbreak here, Dr. H. J. Benz, superintendent of the Bureau of Child Welfare, renewed the Health Department's appeal to persons owning parrots purchased since January 1.

These birds, believed to have been in contact with infected birds, constitute a definie menace to health, he said, and should be reported to the health authorities. He declared:

"Birds bought in Pittsburgh since January 1 all constitute a potential danger."

The Medical Society's report was signed by three physicians constituting a special committee named several days ago following adoption of a resolution asking for "immediate" action on the part of health authorities. The committee included:

Dr. Walter F. Donaldson, secretary of the state medical society; Dr. W. W. G. Maclachlan, pathologist and outstanding authority on psittacosis, and Dr. I. Hope Alexander.

The report stated:

"This committee has received utmost co-operation from the Department of Health in its efforts to comply with the requests contained in the resolution adopted by the Allegheny County Medical Society."

A psittacosis ward set up in Municipal Hospital for segregation of suspected cases at the behest of the society is still without patients. No new cases have been reported for the past week.

'LOVING WIFE' FIGHTS SUIT

After telling his wife, Lyda Leake, he would rather rot in jail than live with her, David Leake, of Walnut street, McKeesport, sued her for divorce when she left him, charging desertion, Mrs. Leake who contested the suit, testified yesterday before Judge John P. Egan.

The judge tried to effect a reconciliation, asking Mrs. Leake:

"Do you love your husband?"

She replied:

"Yes."

"Would you live with him?"

"Well, he said he would rather rot in jail than live with me and I would not want him to do that."

The Story of Solomon -:- CHAPTER II -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

In the fourth year of his reign over Israel, in the month Zif, the second month, Solomon began to build the house of the Lord; and the cedar of the house within was carved. All was cedar.

And King Solomon sent and fetched out of Tyre a widow's son, Hiram, whose father had been a worker in brass; and Hiram was filled with cunning to work in brass, and he wrought all Solomon's work.

When at last the building of the temple was finished, Solomon assembled the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes; and the priests and the Levites brought up the ark of the Lord, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, and they brought in the ark of the covenant from the city of David. And King Solomon and all the congregation sacrificed sheep and oxen before the ark.

'CROSS' LENTEN SERMONET TOPIC

Little Sublime About One Used on First Good Friday

This week's Lenten sermonet is given by the Rev. G. E. Swoyer, pastor of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, Perrysville avenue. His subject is "The Sacrifice Sublime."

"THE SACRIFICE SUBLIME"
Luke 23: 33.

Surely not much was sublime about the Cross on the first Good Friday. That Cross was not golden like an altar one. It was made of two crude pieces of wood and there was blood on that wood.

Yet the sacrifice on the Cross was sublime. The blessed Lord was crucified there for the forgiveness of wrongs against God and man. Because of that sacrifice the church has turned the Cross, symbol of disgrace, into an emblem of victory. Our hearts grow tender at the memory of the Cross and our spirits rejoice in its redemptive power.

THE REV. G. E. SWOYER.

The sacrifice on the Cross is sublime in its altruistic strength. Those piteous rosebuds of blood of

Spirits Rejoice at Great Power of Redemption

Jesus have tremendously appealed for sacrificial living and dying. When will a battered and broken humanity learn to follow Him in service for others? The trouble is the Galilean is still too far ahead of us. Given half a chance, His sacrificial service will change hearts, remove slums, crush wars, hasten God's kingdom. When? As soon as we get the spirit of Him who on a tree, overcame selfishness and sin for the salvation of others.

Mystery Story Prize Winners and Solution

Again the boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity cleverly matched their wits with "Secret Agent X-9" in solving the mystery of "The Case of the Three Letters." It's hard to beat the boys and girls of today. "Secret Agent X-9" thought he had an almost air-tight finish in this story.

Judges decided that Joseph Kraus, 2 Fetzer street, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh, Pa., had the most nearly correct solution and awarded him the $5 prize. The 20 $1 prizes were awarded as follows:

Eli Rossi, Masontown, Pa.; Esther Schermer, 621 Wallis avenue, Farrell, Pa.; Thomas F. McCrory Jr., 709 Seventh street, North Charleroi, Pa.; Henry Morrow, 409 Pearl street, South Brownsville, Pa.; Byron Beighley, 7531 Washington street, Swissvale, Pa.; Robert Linhart, R. D. No. 1, Irwin, Pa.; Arthur Huttner, 631 McKean avenue, Charleroi, Pa.; Jack Miller, Box 322, Oakmont, Pa.; John Somplasky, Franklyn street, Freeport, Pa.; Willis Bowman, 474 Teece avenue, Bellevue, Pa.; William Barrett, 7707 Snowden street, Pittsburgh; Francis Schmidt, 707 Edmond street, Pittsburgh; Dorothy Elaine Mayer, 6814 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh; Wilbur Dunsky, 1711 St. Patrick street, Pittsburgh; Margaret Taylor, 912 Mellon street, Pittsburgh; Rosalyn Lindsay, 165 Larimer avenue, Pittsburgh; Jack Mason, 2707 Strachan avenue, Pittsburgh; Jennie Gianutsos, 123 St. Joseph street, Pittsburgh; Robert Clancey, 2929 Knowlson avenue, Pittsburgh, and Hazel Dolores Malter, 530 Mellon street, Pittsburgh.

The fourth in the series of three-chapter mystery stories by "Secret Agent X-9" begins in the Sun-Telegraph next Monday, and, as usual, $25 in cash prizes will be awarded for the best solutions sent in by boys and girls up to 17 years of age.

Each installment in "The Case of the Three Letters" contained a hidden clue. The official solution:

1—The first letter eliminates one of the four suspects—the English teacher in the Junior High School—because of the obvious mistake in spelling "gardian" instead of guardian.

2—The second letter refers to the "left-hand side of the yacht," and therefore eliminates the sailor, who would say "port side."

3—The third letter erroneously ascribes the "Rhapsody in Blue" to Irving Berlin instead of George Gershwin and therefore eliminates the piano plugger, leaving the radio repairman as the would be kidnaper.

All faithful members of the Art Society and their friends were at the concert last night in Carnegie Music Hall because of the artists, Rose Bampton, Metropolitan Opera contralto, and Nelson Eddy, baritone, and because the concert was the last of the season. And "last" things are usually eventful.

Art Society concerts are always more informal—for one reason, because the hall is comparatively small. And the audiences always feels closer to the artists.

An indication of the general informal feeling of the audiences of the Art Society is that many women of the smart set come in street costumes or what has been called in recent years, Sunday night dresses.

Gown of Blue Satin With Double Capes

Mrs. J. Z. Collier and her pretty daughter, Louise, one of the debutantes of the past year, were there. Louise wore a gown of deep Alice blue satin, fashioned with double, narrow tailored capes over the shoulder.

Alice Rust was in green chiffon with ruffles of the same material cascading from the waistline to the hemline in back. Others I noted during intermission were Elizabeth and Nancy Craig, Jane Keister and Mrs. George S. Baton.

Mrs. J. Hanson Rose was there, and so were Mrs. John E. Nelson, Mrs. George Pearson, Miss Suzanne Beatty, Mrs. S. Murray Rust and Mrs. D. M. Clemson.

Miss Eleanor Grier wore an attractive black dinner dress with a long-sleeved bodice of green bagheera. And I recall seeing Mrs. Anna F. Philput and her daughter, Mary Philput.

The pretty young contralto, Rose Bampton, chose a frothy gown of yellow chiffon having a full skirt and a bodice with a deep cape edged in kolinsky. And the gown was in keeping with the quaint off-the-shoulder vogue.

Pittsburghers Plan Voyage Over Easter

Among boat-trip-minded Pittsburghers—and there are many this year—are the Benjamin Franklin Harrises. They and their pretty blonde daughter, Betty and their son, John Downey Harris, all of South Negley avenue, are going on a boat trip over Easter, but they haven't as yet decided whether Bermuda or some other favorite spot will be their destination.

Enjoying a holiday at Miami Beach have been the O. D. Robinsons and their daughter, Helen and son, Bob, of "Robinwood," Coraopolis. Mrs. Robinson and Helen and Bob have left Florida by boat for New York, and will be home for Easter.

Helen is a student at the University School, and Bob at Shady Side Academy.

The Art Society presented two young American singers, Rose Bampton and Nelson Eddy, at the season's closing concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night. As with most joint recitals there was a rather hodgepodge program which came preciously near a vaudeville act before the evening finished.

Miss Bampton is the much-heralded American entree to the Metropolitan Opera of last season, and has indeed a most beautiful voice which the program called contralto. It seems to me since its brightest quality rests in the higher voice that, with care, this voice should rise and develop into a rich soprano.

There is a lovely limpid quality in this voice as it flows so easily along the scale, but there is still some inconsistency in its production which a few more years of training should adjust. Her German songs suffered from insufficient breath control, but in both the Rossini air and later in the duet Miss Bampton displayed excellent talents.

Both she and her partner might have abandoned themselves to their music with more freedom. Nelson Eddy, however, is already a most accomplished singer. His voice is not large, but he understands its possibilities in every detail. His wonderful diction, refined sense of minicry (sometimes his grotesqueries intrude where sheer good tone might bring more powerful results—as in the Hugo Wolf "Rattenfaenger," an encore) and sureness of voice make this baritone one of our most artistic recitalists.

Theodore Paxson played splendid accompaniment.

During the evening, Dr. Arbuthnot, president of the Art Society, in his happy and inimitable manner announced the prize winners of this year's contest. The Martin Leisser prize of $100 went to Alan Floyd for his organ composition, "Thoughts in a Cathedral," and the Mu Phi Epsilon prize of $50 to Freda Marcus for her song, "Silver."

Dr. Arbuthnot brought praise from the judges for the excellence of the many compositions submitted and further mentioned with honor works of Mrs. Guido Stempel and William Wentzell. These prizes are awarded only to residents of Allegheny County.

Next year's prizes are as follows: Martin Leisser prize of $100 for the best piano composition; Mu Phi Epsilon prize of $50 for a composition for violin with piano accompaniment.

Radio Poll of District Reveals 12,000 'Likes' And 8,000 'Dislikes'

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Twelve thousand "likes" and 8,000 "dislikes" were received by Mrs. Philip B. Benz, district chairman of radio for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, in the Pennsylvania Clubwoman's radio poll, which has just closed. What the eastern portion of the poll reveals is yet to be seen.

Under auspices of the State Federation's official organ, The Clubwoman, the statewide survey was conducted, the clubs having been asked to take a written vote of likes and dislikes from their members. The largest vote returned in this district was from the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club, which sent 190, and the second was the Butler Woman's Club, with 122. Some clubs sent only three, five or seven votes, but the majority ran into two figures.

The "likes" and "dislikes," as stated in the returns, present an interesting commentary. For instance, there were 641 votes for symphony concerts and not a single protesting vote. "Good music" of various kinds brought 1,485 affirmative votes (the largest group vote cast) and no negative ones, although there were 38 votes against vocal music. Comedians had a fairly even break. Preference for organ music was expressed by 294, while one woman disapproved. Lowell Thomas, with 367 votes in his favor, had two against him.

Educational features, such as lectures, travel and health talks and international broadcasts, ran heavily in favor as did news and current events broadcasts. Drama was about 200 votes to the good and there wasn't one dissenting vote against poetry and prose recitals. Singularly there was little difference between votes for and against home making programs.

There was strong approval of children's programs and there were 667 votes against advertising and only one in its favor. Jazz rated no favorable votes but hundreds against, crooners the same.

Some of the accompanying remarks were amusing in the extreme. One woman appended to her votes "I like it all; it's free." Tabulating the returns was a tremendous task for which someone owes the efficient Mrs. Benz a vote of thanks.

Dr. Macartney Will Talk on 'Christian'

The Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney will deliver the fourteenth of his sermons on "Old Testament Heroes and Their Message for Our Times" at the 10:45 a. m. service tomorrow in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue. During the week services will be held daily at 12:30 noon in the church.

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Father Cox begins a new series of "Travelogues" in an early evening spot.

Dick Gaertner's band returns to the air with a quarter-hour feature at 6:15.

Eddie Peyton's band is heard 15 minutes later than usual, being billed from 11:45 to 12 midnight.

Westerners Hear Big Program

By AIRCASTER

A full 13-hour continuous program sponsored by an oil company goes on the air over a CBS West Coast network today, from sunrise to sunset.

Billed as "The Biggest Show in History," the program commands the talents of a symphony orchestra, three concert orchestras, six dance bands, three brass bands, three novelty bands, an Hawaiian orchestra, 27 vocal soloists, seven quartets, eight trios, 27 comedians, 10 master of ceremonies, 25 dramatic artists and others sufficient to fill a column.

How would Pittsburgh's struggling radio artists like to have such a program every day?

EASTER MORN

Sunrise services from four different localities will greet network listeners Easter morn.

WJAS will transmit services from Arlington Cemetery at 7:30 and from Hollywood Bowl at 8:30.

WCAE will join in service at Walter Reed Hospital at 7:30, while KDKA is to broadcast the early morning rites on Mt. Davidson, California, at 9.

LAZY BONES

Settin' in the sun . . . .
Ford Miller and Dick Koch are likely the first to wear sun-tan this Spring, toting studio chairs out to a wind-sheltered spot on the department store roof where WCAE is perched, and basking, shirtless, between announcements, in the noonday sun.

Elmer (Where's Elmer?) Faber, State Police historian, will celebrate his second anniversary on KDKA tonight.

A smart sponsor is bending an attentive ear to Nancy Martin's late-evening piano-patter program.

Morton Downey and his songs are covering Pittsburgh like the dew. He was on WCAE last night at 6:30 with George Seibel; on WJAS Sunday; on KDKA Monday and WWSW some time during his sojourn here.

STEEL BUYERS CURTAILING ORDERS

By B. E. V. LUTY

The steel market has turned somewhat sluggish in the last two or three weeks after increasing steadily in activity since about December 1, when a definite turn became visible.

Production of steel ingots this week was officially forecast at 46.8 per cent of capacity, six-tenths of a point above last week and nine-tenths of a point under the preceding week. The three weeks were the highest since last August and were about three-fourths higher than the average in November, the intermediate low month.

While the threat of a general strike in the automobile industry was an influence in arresting the rise in steel demand, the drastic nature of the Wagner and Connery labor board bills in Congress is regarded as a much more important influence, causing many buyers to become very reserved. Sellers observed a change immediately after the objectives of the proposed legislation became known. Customers continued to buy for known necessities but limited their purchases strictly, making no commitments into the future.

The menace of a strike caused the automobile industry to increase its efforts, if possible, in the direction of maximum production, but where any steel or parts were likely to be in excess should there be a stoppage of assemblies there was curtailment, or instructions to defer shipment indefinitely, and new buying almost ceased.

RAIL ORDERS INCREASE

The steel trade thinks that if there is legislation along the proposed lines it will represent much toning down from either the Senate or House bill in the present form, but even at that it is disturbed by the outlook, particularly when it observes the attitude of buyers. As matters stand, the halt does not represent an eventual loss as ultimate consumption has not been affected and with a clearer outlook wants would be expressed if not anticipated and production would again be on a definitely rising scale. As it is, the state of order books suggests some decline in production and shipments for the near future.

While orders are being placed only slowly by the railroads, there has been continuously rising production of railroad steel. Orders for rails have been coming in with some freedom in the last fortnight. Releases are issued only as rails are needed and production is somewhat spasmodic, though from the long range view it is rising. The period of the special price of $36.37½ a gross ton, f. o. b. mill, has been extended from March 31 to April 15 while the delivery limit has been postponed from June 30 to August 31.

TUBE DEMAND HESITANT

Demand for tubular goods is approximately stationary, if indeed it has not slipped slightly in the last two or three weeks. Demand for oil country goods was expected to increase markedly as prospects for drilling were good, but the oil industry has become reserved because of possibility of some labor trouble of its own. Standard pipe has had no seasonal increase, but the weather thus far has been adverse.

Tin plate mill operations this week were at an average rate of between 70 and 75 per cent, after two weeks at 80 per cent. Production has been very heavy considering the circumstances that there was a large stock of tin plate and cans at the beginning of the year, accumulated on account of price considerations, and that the usually most active season of the year has not been reached. Some of the tin plate is for deliveries to be specified later, customers simply instructing mills to have it ready.

PRICES UNCHANGED

Steel prices were continued without material change for second quarter, contracting for that period becoming permissible, under the code, on March 1, but buyers show no disposition to place contracts and mills are not suggesting that they do so. At present there is no talk of advances but should there be any, buyers would be given opportunity to cover at current prices for delivery through June 30.

Production of steel ingots in the quarter now ending may be estimated at close to 7,000,000 tons, making a remarkable comparison with a year previous, when production was less than a third as much.

The local scrap market has been dull in the week and may have lost a little in tone, but it has inherent strength on account of the condition as to supplies.

Germany Reduces Exchange Quotas

BERLIN, March 24.—The quota of foreign exchange allowed German importers has been reduced for April from 46 per cent to 35 per cent of the 1931 requirements. At the same time the Economic Ministry has decided to restrict the use of foreign commercial credits by 3 per cent. The decisions are result of unfavorable development in foreign trade and diminution of the Reichsbanks' gold holdings recently.

Ann Arbor to Make Interest Payment

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Dow, Jones & Co., reported that the Ann Arbor Railroad Company would pay on March 26, out of earnings, the interest due January 1 on its 4 per cent first mortgage bonds. No provision has been made for the payment due April 1, but according to the receivers it is hoped to meet this interest within the six-month period permitted by the mortgage.

MOTOR STOCKS LEAD MARKET UPTURN

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP.)—Led by motor shares, the stock market turned upward in today's early trading. The list hesitated at the end of the first hour, however, and nimble traders quietly took profits.

The automotive stocks, however, held up in the face of the light selling, but other divisions eased moderately from their best.

Du Pont got up more than 2 points. Issues retaining advances of fractions to around a point included American Telephone, United States Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, New York Central, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, Southern Pacific and Sears-Roebuck.

While waiting for some announcement from Washington on the automobile strike negotiations, market observers drew considerable cheer from business and industrial news.

Reports from the construction field indicated that activity in this line picked up sharply in the first half of March with building contract awards coming within four per cent of the entire February volume. During this period the contracted volume amounted to more than 92 million dollars compared with about 29 million dollars in the same 1933 days.

The Chain Store Age estimated that chain store sales in February showed a sharper increase over January than in either 1933 or 1932. Average daily sales of the 19 leading companies aggregated $6,800,000 during the month, against $6,552,700 for January.

Based on early income reports of scattered railroads for last month, statistical services believed that net operating returns as a whole will be pleasant reading. The Southern Pacific, for instance, had a net income of $2,060 as compared with a net operating deficit of $1,226,346 in the same 1933 month. The Erie had a net income of $892,642 as compared with $398,695. The Reading Company showed $1,160,569 against $659,684 and the Lehigh Valley reported $644,325 compared with $239,947.

Foreign exchanges were again narrow in opening dealings. The British pound eased 1/8 of a cent at $5.09⅞ and the French franc was unchanged at 6.59 cents.

GRAIN VALUES TURN UP

CHICAGO, March 24.—Influenced by predictions of quick settlement of automobile labor troubles, grain prices advanced early today. Sharp upturns of securities were also a stamulating factor.

Opening at 1/4 to 5/8 gain, May 87 1/2 to 3/4, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started 1/8 to 1/4 up, and subsequently altered little.

CAR LOADINGS GAIN 13,371

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Loadings of revenue freight during the week ended March 17 totaled 625,773 cars, an increase of 13,371 cars over the preceding week, a gain of 172,136 over the corresponding week in 1933 and an increase of 41,014 cars over the same period in 1932, according to the American Railway Association.

I. C. C. Bans Loan For 'Frisco Lines

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP.)—Receivers for the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad Company yesterday were denied permission by the Interstate Commerce Commission to borrow $6,905,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The commission said the loan is unnecessary and merely would place the Reconstruction Corporation in the position now held by the bond holders.

Portland Cement Production Gains

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The Portland cement industry in February produced 4,168,000 barrels and shipped 2,952,000 barrels from mills. Stocks on hand at the end of the month were 20,763,000 barrels. Production in February showed an increase of 50.1 per cent and shipments a gain of 20.6 per cent, as compared with February, 1933. Stocks at mills were 1.7 per cent lower than a year ago.

Swiss Stocks Higher On Musy Resignation

GENEVA, March 24.—The resignation of M. J. M. Musy as finance minister of Switzerland, was the signal for a rise in shares on Swiss bourses and a decline in bonds, because the resignation was interpreted as at least a temporary and probably a definite defeat of the policy of reflation, which as finance minister he championed tirelessly since the depression began.

Sleeping Beauty Up to Date

Once upon a time there was a prince
Who kissed a girl awake one night in June
When lilac paths there were steeped in the moon . . .
Contrary-like she has not seen him since!
The lilacs long have withered on the bough
And never his gay step upon the stair
To beau her here and there and everywhere;
The telephone is locked in silence . . . now . . .

O lackaday, there is no time to weep
For chance there is he was no prince at all,
To swim a moat, or scale a vine-clad wall
To rescue beauty in so sweet a sleep;

But . . . just a clever lad . . . that in the Spring
Made quite a business of awakening!

—Claire Aven Thomson

He Actually Said It!

Ben Meroff's orchestra was playing Washington. He told his press agent to arrange something unusual for publicity.

"I'd like to play for the President—but not with any other acts there—just alone with the President sitting there enjoying me. If you're so hot—fix that!"

"You're crazy," said the press agent, "Mr. Roosevelt's the busiest man in the world!"

"He's busy?" yelled the actor, "What about me? I'm doing four shows a day!"

Merciless Truth

From Olin Miller: One great problem in newspaper writing is that if you stop to think—you'll miss the edition.

Gag

The theatrical legend that the "curtain always goes up!" was shaken a little the other night, according to Bill Halligan. A well-known comedian of a show was found in his undressing room saturated with repeal-milk—just a few minutes before curtain time

"You're a fine one!" screamed the manager. "Drunk, again!"

"Yeh?" was the retort. "You think I'm drunk? Well, you oughtia see the understudy!"

First-Night Nonsense

One of the stage magazines features a likeness of John Mason Brown, the youngest of the New York actor-murderers. George Jean Nathan told his colleague that he saw the photo.

"I thought it aged you, though," added Nathan.

"Did you, really?" said Brown. "How much older did I look?"

"At least six months," was the fiend's retort.

Heheheh

Bill Deppermann overheard it in a telegraph office. A dear little person swept in, and after addressing a message wrote the single word—yes.

Just to be helpful the counter attendant pointed out that the girl could send ten words for the very same price.

"Thanks," said the lass. "I'll just send one yes. If I said it ten times he'd think I was too anxious."

Capsule Criticism

If I Were Their Severest Critic instead of being their best friend: I would tell the three Radio Rogues that most of their echoes of radio well-knowns are delightful and accurate, particularly those of Vallee (sounds just like him!). Kate Smith, Singin' Sam, Crosby, Columbo, et al. But I wouldn't mar or even blemish so good an act with the trivia and feeble puns. Nor would I spoil a good impression and return with anemic encores, which aren't even big or small time.

I would ask all those acrobats who use dull jokes and pieces of slapstick not to—before going into their acrobating. They wouldn't be allowed to say anything except alley-oop.

If I were Eddie Peabody, the banjo player, I would insist that the amplifiers be killed when I was on. His specialty is defeaning.

I would tell Rudy Vallee to stop singing it "Git along, little doh-jee."

Pardon Our Push

A headline says:

"Cardinals Sweep Three-game Series. Fourth Straight Loss for the Giants!"

The Dodgers may not be "in the league," but they're glad the Giants are!

Street Scene

The Man in the Street, to hear Harold Seton argue it, is often responsible for the pungent cracks. The other night, frinstance, gangs of men were "working" reconstructing Bryant Park at 42d St. and Sixth.

Spectators were commenting on the brazen inactivity of the "laborers." One inquired:

"Did you ever see a dream working?"

"Don't make fun of them," scolded another, "they are some of the park's new statues."

In Fewer Words

Izzy Elinson observes that starving actors prefer Hollywood to Broadway because in Hollywood there's a chance of getting hit with a pie.

We Used It Years Ago!

A Jewish matchmaker relays it—but warns me that it is older than any gag heard on the radio. And funnier, too. It deals with a matchmaker who said to a young man:

"I have a girl for you with $20,000."

"Can I see her picture?" asked the willing chap.

"With $20,000," snapped the matchmaker, "we don't show pictures."

Sotto Voce

Joe Paul: That Rubinoff gag ran here and it was Heifetz not Elman. You win. Dorothy Fields: Thanks, but without the melody the rhythm seems jerky. Henry Hart: Your Mayor Kelly can testify to me being Chicago's booster —on occasions. Don't be a pill.

Typographical Error

From the coast comes the report that two of the orchestra and Ben Bernie have written a new ditty that has a swing to it. The title is: "Rip Van Winchell" ("He sleeps all day and snoops all night!").

A new way of spelling scoops.

DowneyBrings Own Show To Penn

By MICHAEL SHAW

Morton Downey, the popular tenor, has brought his own show to the Penn, and a very entertaining show it turns out to be.

Amidst colorful settings and tuneful music, you will find a charming and extremely agile chorus, an octette of male singers, Ruth Ford, who does a burlesque of a fan dancer and some other comedy a la Fannie Brice, and, most important of all, Frank and Milt Britton and their mad band.

Possibly you saw the Brittons in one of the old Ziegfeld "Follies." Well, their act is just as funny as it was then, and it is hard to be any funnier than that.

From the moment these masters of rough-house appear, sedately made up as great composers of the past, to the time when they bow out, leaving the stage littered with the wreckage of violins and chairs, with parts of costumes and pools of water, and with the back drop crashing down on them, they are simply swell.

To cap the climax, Mr. Downey himself steps to the microphone and sings a whole series of the songs which his admirers have come to love. There is "Everything I Have Is Yours," and "This Little Piggie," and "Have You Ever Seen a Dream Walking?" and then "The Rosary," well staged with the male octette, garbed as choir boys, in the background.

And, of course, there is "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling;" it just wouldn't be a Downey show without that.

Mr. Downey sings these songs as only he can sing them, and he is always his pleasant, obliging and engaging self. Yesterday's audience loved him.

The feature picture is "Good Dame," with Sylvia Sidney and Fredric March. It is about a very tough carnival concessionaire who devotes himself to a new girl every night until a stranded turkey show dancer falls in love with him.

The versatile Mr. March acts with great vigor, and Miss Sidney does what she can with the material. Unfortunately, the big dramatic scenes seem a bit ludicrous.

But Mr. Downey and the Brittons and that clever chorus more than make up for the film; their stage show is just about the best we've had since the renaissance of flesh-and-blood entertainment.

Raft Dancer In Stanley Movie

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Bolero," film in the Stanley, is an interesting, moderately paced novelty in the dramatic line that devotes a lot of footage to dancing by George Raft—and Georgie is a good dancer. It takes its title from the familiar dance composition by Maurice Ravel, which is the musical motif of the picture and the epical climax of the career of a dancer, a career that begins in comedy and ends in tragedy.

In this story of a young hoofer who climbs to the top of his profession as an artistic dancer, Raft portrays a man who is attractive to many women, and who falls in love with only one. Seen first as a performer at an "amateur night," who is razzed and "gets the hook," he profits by the example of a much less talented male dancer, teamed up with a girl, who wins applause. Thereafter Raft has a succession of girl partners, dropping one after another as he climbs the ladder from an American beer garden to the ritziest palaces of Paris and London.

Impulsively, as the notion strikes him, he quits each successive dancing spot with the declaration, "I'm too good for this place," and proceeds to another—with a different teammate. Only in his last dramatic appearance—in his own gorgeous cabaret—he is unable to speak the words, and his brother and manager utters them instead.

Raft lends to the portrayal his really gifted feet, dapper appearance and an immobile countenance that indicates his non-interest in the girls who want love as well as money for working with him, although he is good at pretense as long as he wants to keep them. The right one comes along in Carole Lombard, and he loses her when what she thinks is heroism on his part proves to be only his desire for more publicity.

Sally Rand is a secondary principal, and she is seen in her much-publicized fan dance. William Frawley performs well as the comedy-relief brother and manager.

A newsreel, cartoon comedy in color and a comedy burlesque of the "Dinner at Eight" theme complete the bill.

Shrew Tamer Tonight in Tuxedo

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Shakespeare is brought up-to-date tonight at the Hebrew "Y" in Bellefield avenue, when the Playhouse group presents "The Taming of the Shrew" in modern dress with cocktail trimmings. David Cornman directs the production, and the cast includes Sanford Bickart, Marjorie Eshelman, Beatrice Cohen, Stanford Maizlech, Irving Cahan, Hannah Golding and Walter Framer. Laurence London has designed the settings. There will be another performance Monday evening. Katharine and Petruchio lend themselves well to such sport, as was shown when Fritz Leiber did the comedy here with a flivver and latter-day slang.

Mr. Seibel

"The New Deal" has also been put into dramatic form, and will be staged next Tuesday evening at the graduation exercises of the South Hills evening school, under direction of Mary Munch.

Another amateur group is being organized on the South Side Hill Tops by the Y. M. C. A., covering Knoxville, Mt. Oliver, Allentown, Mt. Washington, Beltzhoover, Carrick and the South Side. D. M. Hall of the Epworthian Players will direct this group.

The Epworthian Players have transferred their "Passing of the Third Floor Back" to the Nixon Theater, changing the date from April 5 to April 17.

The Community Players of the Monongahela Valley will present Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" on April 5 and 6 in the Carnegie Auditorium, Braddock. Morton Frank and Mrs. J. H. Shontz supervise the production.

"It Happened in Hollywood" is played on the same dates in the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., by the Triangle Players, directed by Oscar Norbeck.

Variety Bill In Pitt

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

"Let's Go Places" is whooping it up in the Pitt with plenty of fun. There's color in the show, lots of it, and a continual go-go-go that takes you right along.

Bobby Pinkus strikes the main note of comedy with joking chatter that is powerfully infectious and some dancing that is pretty neat. He even imitates Helen Morgan with an agility that calls for encores. Backing him up now and then, again going it alone, are Henry Hite—a mere baby of eight feet plus—and Tommy Lowe. Gagging or tapping, it doesn't matter, they get your laughs in large numbers.

In an effective setting of an "Award Dinner," the Radio-Ramblers mimic all the top-notch radio stars, mouthing through Amos and Andy and a few minutes later trilling a duet by Rosa Ponselle and Lawrence Tibbett.

Roye and Mae, straight from the revues, slide from the planet Mars, in a dance oddity depicting the queer creatures inhabiting that unvisited planet. Clever dance it is, too. Also coming astage via Mars is Jerry Ballard who taps on skates or on her toes equally well.

Helping out all the rest and managing quite capably by herself, Olive White sings in the good old blues style. As for the Skyrockets, their warrior dance is perhaps the most striking, but their doll number has most appeal, if you judge by the show-goers response.

Lilyan Tashman makes a final screen appearance in the story of a stage mother and a convent reared daughter who are separated for many years, and, meeting, find their ideas of life rather confusing to one another. "Wine, Women and Song" it's called, with Lew Cody supporting Miss Tashman.

All In A Day

Mr. Smith Goes Into Bankruptcy

MR. JOHN SMITH—Looked upon as a substantial citizen in this country, filed a petition in bankruptcy the other day. He listed his liabilities at $36,420 and claimed to have no assets. May I present you with a few reactions? . . .

AN OLD FRIEND—Listen, Miss R., and don't miss up on this. You know John Smith, of course. Yes, that's the one. He's a very old friend of mine and we used to play poker together a great deal. That's right. What? Oh, yes, he's a very fine man all right. Very fine.

But—ahem—get this straight, Miss R. If he calls up at any time, I'm not in. Never, you understand. It's just—er, it's just that I don't feel like seeing him these days. . . .

* * *

MR. SMITH'S BOOKMAKER—Tch, tch, tch, tch. I sure feel sorry that Smith went broke. It just shows the tough luck I'm running in. Another year of his bets, and I coulda retired. . .

* * *

THE FORMER MRS. SMITH—In a way I feel a little sorry about John. Of course, he never was much good. But when a man who was once your husband has to go into bankruptcy, I guess you have to feel a little sorry. I wish I could help him a little. He probably hasn't a cent and—

Oh! I just thought of something. If he hasn't any money, what's going to happen to my alimony? I need it. I have to have it. Oh, the rat! I'll bet he did this on purpose.

I'll put him in jail, that's what I'll do! . . .

* * *

AN ACCOUNTANT — Bankruptcy case. File number 548,970. John Smith. Charge account number 651,379. Paid bill in full three months ago. Record clear. We're lucky. Close out charge account immediately.

Next bankruptcy case? . . .

* * *

A RELATIVE — Well, what can you expect, Martha? Smith was always a fool, even if he is my cousin. I couldn't pick my relatives, could I? If I could, I certainly would have dropped all of yours.

* * *

AN OLD MAN—I see in the paper, mamma, where another man went into bankruptcy. He owes over $36,000! Think of that, mamma. Over $36,000!

How can one man borrow so much? I needed $5 to help us over until next week—but when I asked the cashier in the factory this morning, he told me it couldn't be done. I can't owe $5, but another man is able to owe $36,000.

I wonder sometimes, mamma, if there isn't something wrong with this world . . .

* * *

A CHORUS GIRL—Don't tell me he hasn't got a penny! Oh, my. Are you sure? Oh, my. And to think that I—to think that I —oooooh, I'll never trust another man! . . .

* * *

THE BANKRUPT MAN—I'll show them. I'll show them all. I'll start all over again and make good every penny. I'm still young enough . . . still young enough. . . .

Auto Crisis On Screen

Highlights of the threatened auto strike are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Leaders in the industry, including Alfred P. Sloan, Alvin Macauley, Walter Chrysler and others summoned to the White House by President Roosevelt, pose before the camera following the meeting. In Detroit thousands fill the streets discussing the crisis, which is described by the Globe Trotter.

America should keep out of war my "minding its own business," declares James W. Gerard, wartime Ambassador to Germany, upon his return from Europe.

From Palm Beach come scenes of the international motorboat and outboard races. Antonio Becchi, of Italy, wins the 12-liter powerboat title. During this race the boat of Prince Ruspoli takes fire and the prince and his mechanic leap into the water and are rescued. The outboard dash for the Hearst trophy is won by Horace Tennes, of Chicago.

NOTE—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedule, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Those old Wall street boys are putting up an awful fight to keep the government from putting a cop on their corner.

Will Rogers.

You don't hear as much of Senator Bill Borah as you used to. With all the new fangled things they have for breakfast nowadays, you don't hear as much of ham and eggs as you used to, either. But it's still mighty good eating.

Mr. Borah says: "When you cut down your wheat production 43 million acres, where are the farmers and people that farmed those 43 million acres going, and it's proposed to send two million from the crowded cities to the country, how are these two going to pass going and coming?"

Those professors in the Agricultural Department are going to have a tough time answering that traffic problem. Yours,

WILL.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, March 24.—Hello. Seldom is jaded Hollywood stirred by so-called literary sensations, but James M. Cain is proving the exception to the rule (if it is that) with his best-seller novel, "The Postman Always Rings Twice," a murder thriller, packed with dramatic punches by amazingly simple dialogue (that's its charm, really).

Anyway, the industry was somewhat startled when it became known that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had purchased the daring theme. Several producers shied at the idea—and more startling still is the news today that Jean Harlow is slated for the feminine role, while Clark Gable may be assigned the male lead. Cain, now a member of M-G-M's scenario staff, will probably prepare the script of his novel.

* * *

Strolling down news-collecting lane and the like—UNIVERSAL punctured the bank account for John (very high-brow) Galsworty's novel, "One More River," and slates the ditty as a James Whale production. R. C. ("Journey's End") Sheriff has dished up the script, his third for the whale of a chap.

* * *

Things were so orderly with traffic at the corner of Hollywood Blvd. and Vine street that Officer Earl Reed gave HIMSELF a ticket—just to keep in practice!

* * *

They were discussing "The House of Rothschild" and the conversation led to the names of other illustrious Hebraric statesmen, including that of Gladstone, the English statesman.

"But was he Jewish?" someone asked incredulously.

And Roy Del Ruth flipped: "Was he Jewish: Wasn't he in the luggage business?"

Wanderings Around Hollywood . . . About-to-be-divorced hubby of a star went slightly DAFFY t'other eve when trying to gain entrance to a certain brunette's apt. with the aid of a GAT. Hotel detectives FINALLY persuaded the overly-romantic chap to drop his pop-gun into a desk drawer and forget—for the moment . . . Hazel Forbes, the tooth powder gal, is a-dancing at late hangouts with Eddie Cronjager, the camera cranker . . . Ted Lewis, who is at the Paramount Theater, and the missus were terribly INTRIGUED by Gene Austin's music at the Clover Club . . . There's a deal on for the yacht Club Boys (super-entertainers) to Hollywood debut it at one of the gay joints . . . Verna Hillie (wifey of the warbler, Geoffrey Gill) is trading her housewife's apron for her makeup kit again—this time for a choice spot in "Cleopatra" . . . Despite what you hear, Lee Tracy HASN'T signed any deal with Paramount. The front office is STILL waiting for him to show up—and Junior Laemmle of Universal, who gave Tracy his comeback chance, is BURNING 'cause the scampering actor PROMISED to sign with his outfit . . . After six years of being an assistant director, Charley Barton has been PROMOTED (?) to a gagman for Norman Macleod, directing Burns and Allen in "Many Happy Returns" for Paramount.

Comedy Film In Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

If the threat of war really looms on the horizon, as a great many people think, "Come On Marines," feature picture in the Warner, will do more to insure a quota of young Pittsburghers in the Marine Corps than seventeen drafts. That is, if the real thing is anything like it is in the movies.

What could be sweeter than the gay, rollicking adventures that beset Richard Arlen and his company of Leathernecks, detailed to rescue some shipwrecked "children" who turn out to be a bevy of cuties from a Paris finishing school?

"Sergeant" Dick, to whom all dames are poison because they once cost him his stripes, has the interesting chore of saving his men from their own worst inclinations, as well as the cuties from a gang of bandits. His task is not made any easier by the engaging but incorrigible antics of the cutest of the cuties, Ida Lupino, who eventually gets her man.

There's just enough pathos and danger, creeps and chills in Philip Wylie's story, to make the main comedy theme stand out in hilarious relief. Roscoe Karns, as "Spud" McGurke, gob-deserter, ex-taxi driver and involuntary Marine, nearly steals the picture from "Sergeant" Dick, who only saves himself from this fate by being at his very best in a good role in a good story. For comedy-drama, full of action and laughs, "Come On Marines" is in the front line.

The program includes an E. M. Newman musical journey to Jerusalem, the Holy City," an Easy Aces comedy, "Isn't That Awful?", an all-colored musical revue film, with Mills Blue Rhythm Band, and Pathe News.

BUCS AND CHICAGO WHITE SOX OPEN SERIES TODAY

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Foxx Seeks Homer Mark. Shorter Fields May Help. Slugger Uses Light Bat.

Hurler Must Hide Pitch. Floor Changes Opposed. Shifts in Track Form.

Jimmy Foxx thinks this is his year to break Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs. He said the same thing last spring, but didn't figure he would be laid up in a hospital for a week shortly after the season opened and thrown off his batting stride for another six or seven days. That spike wound killed his chances. Going into June he had made only six homers, and even with a strong finish he could go above 48 for the season. This year Foxx hopes to escape a repetition of that early handicap, and sees two other helpful new factors in the shortening of left-field at the White Sox grounds, and the return of the Indians to their old park with its much shorter port garden.

Jimmy Foxx

Jimmy made only a few homers in Chicago and Cleveland during 1933, and estimates that if he can pick up three or four homers over last year in each park he will be sitting pretty in his efforts to boost Ruth's mark to at least 61. Foxx is not disturbed at the prospect of having to bat against Bob Grove, Rube Walberg and George Earnshaw, former teammates on the A's. He doesn't believe any of the trio can show him anything he hasn't seen before, and thinks Grove may even be a cousin.

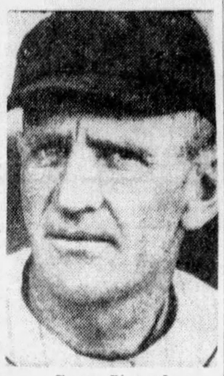
SLUGGER'S BATS WEIGHS ONLY 36 OUNCES

Foxx's terrific hitting is done with light bats. They weigh only 36 ounces. He used to swing a 40-ounce club, and thought a top-heavy bat was necessary to get distance, but says he found out that was all foolishness. The Mackian mauler explains it's a wrist-snapping follow-through that produces his homers. He would use even lighter bats if they'd hold up.

Foxx disagrees with other sluggers who believes they must grip a bat at the base of the handle to get distance. He contends that timing and follow-through are more important than leverage. In batting practice at Shibe Park one day last summer Mickey Cochrane and other doubters asked him to prove it. Jimmy gripped a bat one-third way down and hit the first three pitches into the upper deck of the left field stand.

TIPPING PITCH COMMON ROOKIE FAULT

It isn't always because they lack the necessary stuff or control that young pitchers fail to make good in the majors the first time up. A common fault among rookie hurlers is that they telegraph their deliveries. By some motion, of which the recruits themselves are unconscious, but which is a wide-open book to smart big league opponents, they tip off to the batter what they are going to pitch or let a baserunner know when they are going to throw to first and to the plate. They've got to learn to hide their intentions before they can hope to stick in fast company.



Casey Stengel

One of the smartest men in the majors at detecting faults of that kind is Casey Stengel. In camp the other day the Dodger manager stood in the coaching box and on pitch after pitch told Recruits Munns, Perkins and Page what each was going to throw. The rookies were mystified until Stengel pointed out the tell-tale motions that showed whether the pitch was to be a fast ball or a curve. Among the new Yankee flingers, Vito Tamulis is a notable exhibit. While Tamulis was pitching, Joe McCarthy called the turn on 11 out of 12 consecutive deliveries, and then explained to the youngster that he'd have to change his motion to get anywhere. That goes also for a pitcher's motion when there's a runner on first. Stengel says there are about five smart baserunners in the National League who can tell when almost any pitcher is going to throw to first and when he is going to throw to the plate. With a rookie in there openly advertising his intentions, those fellows would steal the ball park.

OPPOSITION TO ALLEN'S FLOOR PROPOSALS

So far, none of the other best minds in basketball has expressed approval of Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen's ideas for making over the game for next season with the exception that Ernie Quigley, veteran sports official, favors the proposal to make field goals count for three points instead of two on the ground that the present difference in scoring value between a field goal and free throw is not sufficient. Signs in most quarters are that there will be vigorous opposition to the other suggestions.

Dr. Allen, who is Kansas coach, would elevate the baskets to 12 feet for college competition, put them at 11 feet for high school boys, and leave them at the present height of 10 feet for junior high school players. The Kansas mentor argues that the higher baskets would make for more arched shots and would also do away with the race to get tall centers and unusually tall players in general. His contention is that where the basket is four feet or less above the head of the average player, as at present, the man six inches taller than the average has an advantage, but that the tall man would not be given such a great advantage by his excess height if the basket were six feet above his head. Dr. Allen also advocates a rule that time shall not be "out" for substitutions made in the last minute of either half of a game. Like the distance between the bases in baseball, the height of the hoops in basketball never has been changed. They have stood at 10 feet ever since Dr. James Naismith invented the game in the winter of 1891.

TRACK TIME AFFECTED BY COMPETITION

While speculating on Glenn Cunningham's chances of beating Jack Lovelock's world running record of 4:07.6 for one mile before he retires from the track, the speed experts are debating what effect close competition would have had on Cunningham in his latest dazzling performance. The Kansas Flyer shaved the indoor record to 4:08.4, the fastest mile ever run by an American on any kind of track. Cunningham himself thinks he would have done better if he had been pushed, and the opinion is shared by some of the running authorities.

Glenn Cunningham

But many disagree. They believe that some runners cannot do their best against certain opponents whom they have reason to fear; that in close competition a speeder seeks victory over his rivals rather than a record and puts his mind on them rather than on the clock. Ed Hughes recalls in this connection that they once said the same of Joie Ray—he could do better if pushed. But when the man arrived who could push him, Ray was nowhere. Paavo Nurmi ran away from him in their first meeting in 1925 to set a record of 4:12. Joie could do nothing against the Finn, but 10 days later he ran against a lesser opponent, Lloyd Hahn, and equaled the Finn's time. Normon Taber once set a world mile mark by running against four fast quarter-milers, but in competition later he fell short. Competitors react in various ways on the track form of others.

CUP PLAYOFFS RESUMED

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP.)—Three Canadian teams line up with their backs to the wall tonight and tomorrow to complete the first stage of the National Hockey League's playoff series which ends in the classic struggle for the Stanley Cup, emblem of the world's professional hockey championships.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, league champions and Stanley Cup finalists last year, encounter the Detroit Red Wings tonight in the second clash of their three-out-of-five series for the league title.

The second and third place eliminations will be completed tomorrow with the Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers facing the two Montreal teams, the Canadiens and Maroons, respectively. These both are two-game eliminations, decided on total goals, and the two United States teams are conceded the edge in the closing encounters.

The winners of these elimination playoffs will clash in a similar two-game semi-final for the right to meet the Toronto-Detroit victory in the five-game battle for the Stanley Cup.

PARK POLOISTS FACE CAVALRY

As the Indoor Polo League race draws into its final stages, the competition becomes keener, and so tonight's battle between the 308th Cavalry malleteers and the South Parkers promises exciting action.

Both have instituted belated rallies recently after disappointing starts. Between them they dragged the Artillerymen down from a lofty perch atop the local ladder, allowing the Vangs to slip into the lead without so much as raising a mallet.

Aided by a two goal handicap, the Troopers trounced the Parkmen in their first tilt. But tonight, despite the absence of Sid Landau at No. 2, the South Park trio will strive not only to avenge the previous drubbing but to minimize the Cavalry's mathematical chances at the title.

With Hunt Armory, East Liberty, the scene of the action, the contest will get under way at 8:30 o'clock. The probable lineup:

BIKE RACERS WORK OUT ON TRACK

Entrants in the six-day international bicycle race which gets under way at Duquesne Garden at midnight tomorrow, today were working out over the board saucer erected in speedy time by a force of 70 men who did not begin work until Wednesday. The riders pronounced the saucer, which is one-tenth of a mile in length, one of the fastest on which they have been asked to compete.

There are 22 of the racers, most of whom arrived here yesterday and were received by Mayor William N. McNair in his office.

Piet Van Kempen, the world champion; Torchy Peden and other stars will vie for $5,000 in prizes in the race, which, because of the high banked ends of the track, is expected to provide an unusual number of spills and other thrills.

Cliff Montgomery's Engagement Broken

NEW YORK, March 24.—(Universal.)—Last September Cliff Montgomery, captain and quarterback of the Columbia University football team, announced his engagement to Miss Natalie Louise Tettervan.

Today simultaneous announcements from Cliff and the young woman were published that the engagement was a thing of the past. Cliff said:

"Miss Tettervan is a dandy girl, but as we just decided that we'd better remain good friends instead of getting married. Understand, there has been no ill-feeling over this matter. Our plan was dissolved by mutual consent."

20 Schools Seek Title In Tech Swim Meet

By JESS CARVER

Pittsburgh and district scholastic swimming stars will make their second attempt in as many weeks to repel the invasion of Ohio tankers as 20 schools, represented by some 200 athletes, battle for honors in the fifth annual Carnegie Tech aquatic relays in the Tartan gymnasium pool this afternoon.

Eleven senior and nine junior high school teams are entered in the competition for relay trophies, McKinley High School, of Canton, winner in the twentieth annual Pitt interscholastic champion meet last week, has a team of relay stars entered in the senior events and rules a strong first choice to dethrone Carrick High School, which won the senior title last year.

In the junior division, Latimer is conceded a fine chance to repeat its 1933 triumph.

CARRICK FACES TESTS

Beside fighting off the challenge of McKinley, Carrick faces stern opposition from Duquesne, Uniontown and Clairton, all boasting string relay strength. Pat Corr, head coach of swimming at Pitt, will do the starting.

Pitt's crack track and field squad is in Indianapolis today, were tonight the Panthers will take part in the annual Butler University relay games. The Panther mile relay team, which has cracked a record in both of its last two appearances, at South Bend in the central states championships and in the Armour Tech games in Chicago, is favored to win the university mile event and possibly to establish a new mark. Kiger, Connelly, Keller and either McDonald or Groat will run for the Panthers.

With Ralph Metcalfe out of competition with a strained tendon, Arvil Fleming, Pitt's star Negro dash man, rules a strong favorite to win the dash event. Fleming finished a step behind Metcalfe in the central states meet two weeks ago. Other Pitt competitors tonight will be Bonivita, in the shot; Pelucha, in the pole vault, Wagonhouse, in the mile, and Guay, in the hurdles.

RIGG NEW LEADER

Another guard will lead Carnegie Tech's varsity basketball team next season. The Tartan varsity players yesterday elected Ted Rigg, veteran defensive ace, leader of the 1934-35 quintet, to succeed George (Red) Silverman, who graduates in June.

Rigg has been a star for the Plaid since he broke into the lineup at the start of the 1932-33 season. He was injured midway during the campaign recently closed and was lost to the team for several important games.

Nine lettermen figured in yesterday's selection, including Capt. Silverman, Paul Gibson, Brad Edelblut, Charley Spisak, Fred Freedel, Frank (Goona) Sanford, Steve (Two Card) Trbovich and Thurman Croft.

Some half dozen additional institutions are expected to apply for membership in the Tri-State Association for the selection of basketball officials at the annual spring meeting of the association at Webster Hall today.

At present, 14 district colleges and universities are members, including Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne, Bethany, Grove City, Allegheny, West Virginia, Wash-Jeff, Waynesburg, West Virginia Wesleyan, St. Vincent, Westminster and Thiel.

The Tri-State Basketball Coaches' Association also will meet today.

CURRY READY FOR BATTLE

By TOM BIRKS

The Curry Soccer Club swings into defense of its Western Pennsylvania senior title tomorrow afternoon when it meets the Gallatin Club in the semi-final round of the tourney in the first game of a double-header at Greenlee Field.

After Curry and Gallatin have decided which is to enter the final round, Heidelberg and Moon Run will take the field to decide the team to meet the winner of the first game in the grand final. The first game is scheduled to get under way at 1:30 o'clock. Extra time will be played in both games if necessary.

Much speculation is rife among soccerites regarding the senior champion this season. The four clubs taking the field tomorrow are without a doubt the cream of the crop in this district, and anyone of the four is capable of annexing the crown.

Heidelberg, facing a battle with the Chicago Sloboda eleven the following Sunday in the Western final of the national amateur cup, is classed as the best club in the district at the present time.

Moon Run will prove to be a tough nut to crack, however. Polly Van Jura and his mates have been upsetting clubs throughout the season, and may turn the trick tomorrow.

The Shannon Braves are looking for games at home and abroad. Call Lehigh 6088-R in the evenings between 6 and 7 o'clock.

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—Having enjoyed their 50-50 party with Charley Grimm's Cubs, the Pirates today were ready to sample the American League wares to be dished out by the Chicago White Sox. The White Sox and Pittsburghers are slated to tangle in no less than 14 battles before the championship season begins. The first of these contests will be run off this afternoon at Wrigley Field.

Lou Fonseca's big leaguers will have to compete against two classy young pitchers as they run afoul of the Buccos, for Southpaw Ralph Birkofer and Cy Blanton

JONES TRAILS FIELD AT AUGUSTA BY EIGHT STROKES

HORTON SMITH LEADS CRACK PRO RIVALS

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones faced a task today that would have tested his smile and courage even in his reigning years as emperor of golf, that of overtaking professional rivals who hold advantages of from one to eight strokes.

With half the masters invitation battle done, Jones finds himself no better than in twenty-eighth position, far behind the leading Horton Smith and below most of his professional opponents of former days.

Erratic putting in the opening rounds sent Jones' scores high, offset his fine play through the fairways and forced him to post rounds of 76-74—150.

LONG GAME GOOD

Excluding his performances around the green, Bobby's "comeback" has been successful for his long game has been near perfect, but inability to regain his former putting stroke and the consequent errors have all but pushed him out of the running. Bobby needed two good rounds today and tomorrow to get up among the leaders and a pair of marvelous exhibitions to stand any chance of winning. Curiously the one man who now holds the widest margin over Jones is Horton Smith, the youngster who gave Bobby his last defeat in the spring of 1930, before the "grand slam" march was on. Smith played par closely yesterday for a 72 after his opening 70 for a two-round total of 142, and a stroke lead over the field.

Bill Burke, Jones' successor as the United States Open champion in 1931, and big Ed Dudley, whose 69 was yesterday's low score, were tied at 143. The veteran MacDonald Smith and a couple of younger stars, Jimmy Hines and Ralph Stonehouse, were together at 144.

SHUTE HAS 146

Within easy distance were four strong threats at 145. Leo Diegel, Paul Runyan, Craig Wood and Al Espinosa, while Denny Shute, the British Open champion from Philadelphia, is only a stroke further removed.

It still was anyone's tournament, for 20 professionals were within five shots of each other, and prospects were for a wide open battle down the stretch.

Charles Yates, Atlanta boy, fired a nice 72 yesterday to bring his two-round total to 148 and take the amateur leadership, while Ross Somerville, the Canadian Scot, who won the United States amateur championship two years ago, provided one of the big thrills with a hole-in-one on the seventh hole.

If his putting touch returned today, Jones still could make it uncomfortable to his foes, for the other parts of his game are clicking. The crowd still was pulling for Jones.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: NO SLEEP FOR 45 YEARS—Now in his seventy-fourth year, William Grant Colson, of Port Elizabeth, South Africa, has not known the pleasure of sleep for more than 46 years, yet he remains hale and hearty, and the jauntiness of his step belies his age. Up to the twenty-eighth year of his life, Colson was normal in every way, and then suddenly he suffered through a sleepless night, then another, and still another until medical advice was sought. Doctors in England, his homeland, pronounced his heart very weak, and, in broken health, Colson sailed for South Africa. However, the climatic changed proved successful, and today he is the proprietor of a native curio store on Victoria Quay in Port Elizabeth. Because the habit of his earlier life still is upon him, Colson still goes to bed--goes to bed with hope, faint though it must be, that one night's restful slumber again will be his. MARRIAGE LICENSE FROM AN INSANE ASYLUM—It probably gives prospective brides and grooms a hesitant and peculiar feeling in Northfield, N. J., when they apply for their marriage licenses because they must apply at the Insane Asylum. Dr. Edward Guion, Registrar of Vital Statistics for the City of Northfield, is the only person who can issue marriage licenses, and his only office is in the Atlantic County Hospital for the Insane.

N. KENSINGTON AND SOUTH FIVES COP

By JULIUS LEVIN

Western Pennsylvania is assured of a place in the final game for the scholastic basketball championship of the state as a result of victories scored by its two representatives, South High School, City League titleholder and standard-bearer of District VIII, and New Kensington High School, W. P. I. A. L. kingpin and entry from District VII, in the semi-finals of the Western regional playoffs last night.

South invaded Altoona and defeated Huntingdon High School, champion of District VI, 34-10, while New Kensington, making its first appearance in the state playoffs as a result of drawing a first-round bye, disposed of Erie East, champion of District X and vanquisher of Bradford High School, titleholder in District IX, in first round, 26-25, by scoring a 42-27 verdict in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

WINNERS TO CLASH

As a result of their well-earned triumphs, South and New Kensington will come together in the Western Regional final next Tuesday night in the Pitt Stadium pavilion to determine which of the two Western Pennsylvania schools will be pitted against the Eastern finalist for the state championship a week from tonight.

The Eastern Regional finalist also will be determined Tuesday, when Reading, champion of District III, meets Coal Township, champion of District IV. Reading qualified for the final by defeating Palmerton, champion of District XI and vanquisher of Lower Merion, defending champion, 28-21, at Bethlehem, while Coal Township smothered Factoryville, champion of District XII, 78-17, at Sunbury.

Despite the one-sided score in the Pitt Stadium pavilion game, New Kensington had quite a time defeating an under-rated Erie East quintet, but the brilliance of Harry Jeannette, sterling forward, and Andy Trzeciak, brilliant guard, was enough to send the W. P. I. A. L. champion into the Western Regional final.

Piling up an 18-7 lead in the first quarter, the Glockmen appeared headed for a comparatively easy triumph over the Lake City passers, but the Section X champions struck their real stride in the second quarter and rang up 10 points to three for the Glockmen to pull up within four points at half time with New Kensington on the long end of a 21-17 count.

EAST STAGES RALLY

Erie East continued its brilliant rally in the third quarter when it scored six points in rapid order to pull away from the Glockmen with a two-point advantage for the first time in the contest. New Kensington knotted the count at 23-all, but the deadlock was broken a moment later when Dom Mando, one of the bright performers for Erie, shot a two-pointer to give his mates a 25-23 edge. That was the last time Erie was in the ball game.

Trzeciak was the leading point-getter for the winners with 17 markers, represented by six field goals and five fouls.

Paced by the greatest of all scholastic centers in these parts, South High had no trouble defeating Huntingdon at Altoona. Eddie Spotovich, star pivot man for the victorious team, grabbed himself five field goals and three fouls for a total of 13 points. The lineup:

Beaver Falls, Akron Pin Teams Fail

PEORIA, Ill., March 24.—(AP.)—Pin busters from all sections of the Middle West and East descended upon the thirty-fourth annual American Bowling Congress today in an attempt to surmount the dizzy totals now leading the tournament. Among them were the Eckard Drugs, of Erie, Pa., led by Earl Hewitt, last year's singles champion.

Akron, O., rates consideration with strong teams.

Neither Akron nor Beaver Falls teams were able to bang out a score of prize winning proportions last night. A Beaver Falls team collected 2,684 and the McDowells, of Akron, 2,602. Syracuse was awarded the 1935 tourney. The scores:

PURCELL DUKES' NET LEADER

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Though it was much too wintry to do more about tennis than talk about it, the 1934 edition of the Duquesne University net contingent convened in initial session of the year yesterday and set in motion the wheels that Coach Grant Siverd and his aides hope will grind out a creditable record. No attempt was made to bring the aspirants out-of-doors.

Thirty-four men responded to the preliminary call for varsity and freshman racquet candidates, the group being divided evenly between seekers after advanced and yearling berths. Of the varsity delegation, only Bill Purcell, Frank Serany and Roy Getty have seen regular service.

It was announced at the meeting that Purcell, senior star of the team, has been appointed captain for the impending campaign. The sturdy East Ender is a product of Duquesne Prep and is entering upon his third and final year with the varsity.

The freshman array includes talent from wide variety of localities.

With Coach Siverd absent because of a pressing business engagement, Keller and Julius Boise addressed the Red and Blue inaugural gathering. There will be no formal practice until Wednesday, April 4. The candidates:

Final battles are scheduled in four Pittsburgh district amateur basketball tournaments tonight as play reaches the final rounds at Homestead, Beaver Falls, Tarentum and the Wilmerding Y. M. C. A.

The Braddock Sokol passers annexed the American Russian Sokol Society title last night at Duquesne University gymnasium, defeating the Bridgeport quintet, 30 to 23. In the semi-finals, Bridgeport eliminated Hazelton, 44 to 26, while Braddock drew a bye.

In a consolation struggle, Scranton won over Beaverdale, 36 to 25.

WILMERDING WINS

The Wilmerding, Center Avenue and Johnstown teams came through to the semi-finals in the state Y. M. C. A. tournament at Wilmerding. Wilmerding put out the Downtown team, 40 to 26; Center Avenue defeated Uniontown, 39 to 30 and Johnstown walloped Tarentum, 45 to 28.

With three members of the Geneval College varsity in the lineup, the Newells won in the first round of the Beaver Valley tourney at Beaver Falls, downing the McCrays, 40 to 20. The Geneva players were Ginsberg, Pennybaker and Garda.

The Berkmans eliminated the Sahls, 24 to 23, in a close battle; the Bovas won over the Sjraks, 26 to 12, and the Moltrups downed the Mamone five, 28 to 14.

Favorites found the going rough in the amateur play at Homestead. The Vikings defeated the Jordans, of Rankin, 37 to 25; the Campbells downed the Edgewood Merchants, 32 to 30; Kanes defeated Edgewood, 30 to 26; Masseys won over St. Joseph's, 30 to 20; St. Michael's walloped the Loendi, 39 to 3, and the Ackermans eliminated the Kanes in the third round, 21 to 19. Elmer Rache, of North Braddock, was thrown against the wall in the game with Homestead and was taken to the Homestead Hospital to receive treatment for head injuries. His condition is not serious.

MURPHY TO PLAY HERE

At Tarentum, in the Y. M. C. A. tourney, the Aluminum No. 23 quintet defeated the Duplates, 41 to 31, and the Goldens downed the Clarks, 37 to 22.

Three Chicago teams of the Catholic Order of Foresters will engage a trio of district quintets at Duquesne University this evening. One of the visiting quintets will feature in its lineup Stretch Murphy, former Loyola University star, who played against the Dukes here four years ago. Murphy will be pitted against the Lawrenceville Foresters tonight.

The sixth annual Beaver Valley amateur tournament, scheduled to get under way today at Aliquippa High School, has been postponed until April 7.

CHARLEROI AHEAD

The Charleroi quintet defeated the Fintex passers in an Allegheny County League game last night, 42 to 29, on the Peabody High School floor.

LOCAL, OIL CITY FIVES LOSE

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP.)—A pair of scalps already dangling from their belts, a band of wild charging Sioux Indians from South Dakota went on the war path again today scouting for another victim in their drive for the National Catholic High School basketball championship.

Twice the Red Skins, representing the St. Francis, S. D., Catholic Mission, have massacred their pale face enemies in the fight for a title they never before came close to winning. They defeated St. Mary's, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Ursuline, of Youngstown, O., on successive nights by a total margin of two field goals. Today they were paired against St. Mary team from Stockton, Cal., a team that has established a tournament record for defense.

The last two Pittsburgh district quintets were eliminated in yesterday's play, Central Catholic, of Pittsburgh, bowing to St. John's, of Milwaukee, 34 to 20, and St. Joseph's, of Oil City, losing to St. Mary's, of Stockton, 23 to 11.

Despite the fine play of Wolbers, Pittsburgh center, the Milwaukee quintet managed to stave off a late rally to win out. The lineups:

BUCS, CHISOX OPEN SERIES

are down on the books for the pitching chore.

HIT SIX HOMERS

The Pirates and Cubs made the Pacific Coast League rocket look like a golf ball yesterday as they smacked six homers out of Wrigley Field. The round-trippers were evenly divided, but not so the collective tallies. Gibby's sluggers smeared Grimm's pitchers to the queen's taste as they evened the four-game series. The score was 14 to 8.

A kid southpaw named Don Conrads, Chicago semi-pro, was the victim of a Pittsburgh drive of seven runs in the second inning. The rookie had a terrible time of it. Opposed to Grimm's recruit was Lefty Johnson, who also ran into considerable trouble. Bill Harris, second Bucco pitcher of the day, found the Bruins in an angry mood in the sixth when they made three runs to force a deadlock. But the Pirates untied the knot in the home half with their home-run barrage netting five runs.

BUCS BREAK LOOSE

All three of the Pirate fourbackers were struck in the inning. Paul Waner's round-tripper was the longest clout of the day, the ball passing over the right field bleachers and outer fence. Suhr drove one into the bleachers and Cookie Lavagetto smacked the rocket over the center field wall. Charley Root was the target for this onslaught. Stephenson, Cuyler and Babe Herman drove out homers for the Cubs.

Manager George Gibson directed the Pirates in civilian clothes. Gibby suffered with a headache, believed to have been the result of too much sun.

CHILLYSAUCE

Tut Stainback, new Cub sensation, was acquired by the Angels for less than a song. The flaxen-haired kid was playing with the team of Fairfax High School, whose lineup was the son of Booth Weber, former secretary of the Angels, who recently was given a similar position with the Cubs. Young Weber told his dad about Tut and the rest was easy. Stainback is rated here as a $75,000 beauty, but as the Cubs own the Angels the transfer of the star was more or less of a formality.

Ot Crandall's sturdy son, Jimmy, is now a catcher and the son of his dad looks like a comer since he tossed away his pitching ambitions in deference to the big mitt and mask. Bob Cronin, veteran Los Angeles newspaperman, insists that Art Veltman was the best catcher in the Coast League last season. It is becoming apparent that Art may crowd Hal Finger for Tommy Padden off the Pittsburgh receiving staff.

The Pirates are still six players above the 23-player limit, although there is plenty of time for curtailing the roster. Two pitchers, one catcher and three infielders are likely to be dispensed of. Bill Harris and Floyd Johnson have not been doing much in a pitching line, but some of their loose slab work developed with the lively Coast League ball in play.

Elmer Trapp, Wilkinsburg boy, has impressed Manager Gibson favorably, but Elmer is not likely to be carried in view of the abundance of high grade recruits. And it seems that either Pep Young or Bill Brubaker will have to vamoose to make room for Cookie Lavagetto, who is getting the call around second base.

CHARTERS TOPS PIN LEAGUE

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

The Westinghouse Tenpin League concluded its thirty-second season with Capt. Bastian's No. 11 team carrying off the second-half championship when it scored a shutout over Capt. C. Moyer's No. 9 crew, which took third place.

Capt. C. Smith's No. 8 team, which was tied with the champions previous to the last week's matches, won two games from Vic Vecchiola's No. 9 team to take second honors. Teams Nos 12, 3 and 5 blanked teams No. 10, 2 and 7, while the No. 2 team took a pair from No. 1. The second-half winner won 22 games and lost 11.

Capt. Dave Charters won the individual average title with a 190 mark, while Tom Roantree and Vecchiola finished in a tie for second place with 184. Capt. Rolf's No. 12 team set the season mark for three games, 2,618, and C. Smith's No. 8 team for one game, 928. Burkhart and Schoch divided individual prizes with 689 and 267 scores, respectively.

Entries for the sixth annual Pennsylvania and Ohio Duckpin Association tournament close at midnight tonight with Lou Golvash, at the Forward alleys, Squirrel Hill. Strand, Aldine, Liberty National, Knox Court, Edwards Recreation, Manchester and Ducky Henn's Nos. 1 and 2 teams are entered.

TITLE HANDBALL FRAY TODAY

The crack Y. M. H. A. handball crew will strive to defend its City League Class A championship against the onslaught of Dick Koubek's powerful Keystone Athletic Club force in special playoff tussle at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. this afternoon. Today's rivals wound up the regular campaign in deadlock with Downtown Y several weeks ago. A round robin series to determine the destiny of the crown was thereupon ordered by Chairman Houck with result that the Bellefielders and the Keystoners once more landed in a tie, Y. M. C. A. having been shaken from the tilting.

The city crown goes with the contest. Y. M. H. A. garnered a 3-2 verdict over the Keystone contingent last Saturday to cause the aforesaid jamup, but Capt. Koubek hopes, by revision of his doubles pairs, to reverse the outcome in the vital fracas.

The trophy battle of the City Class B doubles championship will bring together the husky P. A. A. combine of Bill Kern and Vin McGuinness and the slashing Y. M. H. A. duo, Dave Olbum and Sam Gladstone, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. The Y. M. H. A., where Kern last Sunday edged out Sam Wolf for the Junior A. M. A., A. A. U., singles crown, will be the scene of hostilities.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Cleveland—George Pavlik defeated Batting Bozo, 6 rounds; Joey Speigal defeated Andy DiVoli, 6 rounds.

At Baltimore—Lou Raymond defeated Pete Nebo, 10 rounds.

At Chicago—Frankie Sagilio knocked out Midget Mike O'Dowd, 1 round; Bobby O'Dowd defeated Jim Ellopolous, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Tony Falco defeated Irish Jimmy Brady, 10 rounds.

At Grand Forks, N. D.—George Feist defeated Ollie Bartlett, 6 rounds.

At Minneapolis—Sammy Levine knocked out Artie Mitchell, 5 rounds.

At Hot Springs, Ark.—Paul Lee knocked out Uris Flowers, 6 rounds.

At Louisville—Dominic Mancini and Young Terry drew, 10 rounds; Johnny Alba defeated Paddy Walker, 8 rounds; Jack McCarten defeated Bad Boy Harper, 8 rounds.

At Hollywood—George Hansford defeated Frankie Wallace, 10 rounds; Eddie Zivic knocked out Rito Martinez.

At Amarillo, Tex.—Johnny Farrell defeated Eddie Murdock, 10 rounds.

At Reno, Nev.—Sammy Mandell and Archie Kovich drew, 10 rounds; Billy Celebran knocked out Tony Roccaforte, 2 rounds.

At San Luis Obispo, Cal.—Ceferino Garcia knocked out Tommy Herman, 2 rounds.

At New York—Teddy Loder defeated Meyer Rowan, 6 rounds; Abe Wasserman defeated Joe Doherty, 6 rounds.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Joey Bazzone, after his victory over Billy Holt, has decided to set sail against the middleweights. He believes he can whip a lot of them although he will have to give away weight to take them on.

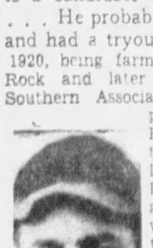
Art Lasky, the St. Paul heavyweight, who has been a sensation in California, is heading East soon. He has contracts for a few more matches on the Coast and then will go after Steve Hamas, Walter Neusel, King Levinsky and the others in a bid for a title match.

MANCINI GETS DRAW

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 24.—(AP.)—Dominic Mancini, Pittsburgh, 146, and Young Terry, Davenport, Ia., 146½, fought 10 rounds to a draw here last night. Mancini floored Terry for a count of nine in the first round and forced the fight most of the way, but Terry, with an effective left jab, blacked both of the Pittsburgher's eyes and did most of the damage in the remainder of the bouts.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Raymond (Heine) Boll, who will manage and play third base for the Book team in the City League again this season, is a candidate for the Legislature from the Second District . . . He probably is the best known of the local sandlot players and had a tryout with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the spring of 1920, being farmed out to Little Rock and later Mobile in the Southern Association. . . . He played for Dan Howley's Toronto team in the International League in 1924 and '25, and later was with Augusta in the South Atlantic League. . . . He began his league career with Rockford, Ill., in 1917.



Heinie Boll

Boll has been signally successful as a manager. . . . He won two County League pennants with the Homewood-Brushton team and also finished first with the East End Club in the City League and has led the Book team to the last two pennants in the City League. . . . He is in his twenty-first season in baseball and also is interested in football, serving as an official in high school and independent games.

Ted Yarosz, Monaca boxer, is ranked second in Collyer's Eye's compilation of the leading middleweights. . . . The only man placed above him is Vince Dundee, the champion, whom Yarosz already has beaten twice, so what does that make Yarosz? . . . Others in the first 10, listed in order, are Johnny Indrisano, Dave Shade, Marcel Thil, Young Corbett, Fred Henneberry, Gorilla Jones, Young Terry and Ben Jeby. . . . No wonder Yarosz wants to fight heavyweights to get some competition. —HARRY KECK.

Marriages Successful Where There Is Co-Operation

I was invited to a very beautiful dinner. It was in a man's club. The dinner was in a private dining room, and the room was spacious and high-ceilinged, and the chairs on which we sat spoke mutely of having been previously occupied by great financiers. Money affairs that had shaken the nation had been discussed upon those very chairs.

Those high paneled walls had heard great political secrets. That thick carpet had been tramped into place by men who were Senators, men in the cabinets at Washington, men who hoarded and then spent so many sheckels that it would take you and me entirely too long to count them.

And we talked around that table. We laughed and reminisced. For we were old friends, united after a lapse of years. Years that in their way had been successful for nearly all of us. At least they had ripened us. Mellowed us. Or made us into wiser men and women.

Some said a great deal. Others spoke but little. And listened. One among the number, a president of a bank, sitting at his ease, brought forth a little book. And there he was among a group of literary folk. There he was esconced between Frank Crane and Joe Mitchell Chappel. And of that he was more proud, than of other things which he had done.

He gave me the book to take home with me. To read, and then return. And he was granting me a great favor. Much more so than if he had put his O. K. on a loan.

A versatile man, one who can see beyond the little narrow door of his business world. One who realizes there is thinking done in other channels than those in which he has passed much of his life. A thoughtful man who reads biographies of men who have done other things than he.

AN UNDERSTANDING MAN

And I call him a successful man.

For he isn't in one little set groove. He can go out beyond himself and put on someone else's spectacles. He knows that other men are living, loving, dreaming. Other men are tramping up and down the streets in quest of something dear to them. That other men have the same right to live in their corner, as well as he in his.

I enjoyed myself. And I also intend to enjoy that little book. For Joe Mitchell Chappel is a good friend of mine. I knew Frank Crane. And I know the man who sat between them in that picture.

One of my readers asks me:

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a young married woman, and I am the working force of the family. My husband is a college graduate, but from another country, and he has had nothing to do for over a year now. But I have a good job, and when I come home in the evening, there is that man of mine with dish towel over his arm, getting the dinner. He is a better cook than I. He also knows how to use the vacuum cleaner, and can even go so far as to wash and iron the curtains.

Some of my friends make fun of him to me. And I don't like it. I know just so soon as my husband finds his place, he will take it again out in business. But in the meanwhile, he is doing what he can; and we are happy together. Is it right that my friends should laugh at him?

A WIFE WHO WORKS.

DON'T MIND TALK

Your friends have no right whatsoever to criticize what is none of their affairs. But having no right will not stop people talking when a circumstance is not what is usually found, and yet works smoothly. You see, you and your husband are finding a scheme to be successful in which many other folk have failed. And that always causes comment. It is what makes great news stories. The exceptional is always interesting.

But don't mind what these people say. Go ahead being an outside worker. Men are good cooks. Look at the great chefs of the world. Nearly all men, I say. Men can do housework and cleaning. This is exemplified in dozens of big hotels. In many co-operative factories where special renovation takes place. And why not do as your husband is doing? Why not help the wife who is the bread earner, by making her home comforable and pleasant?

I have no doubt whatsoever that your marriage will continue to be a successful one. And here's to that husband of yours. May he live long, and prosper.

MISS AMERICA LOOKS AT A NEW, YOUNG QUEEN—NO. 2

-o-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Sally, with the ruby-red-nailed third finger of her hand, intently rubs lip-stick on her lower lip—and wonders: Is a young queen's life SO different from her own, and her friend Sue's?

Is being the queen of a king who rules one of the tightest little kingdoms going—snug, safe, admiring their royal house, prosperous, BRAVE—for have they not proved that, ever since Caesar's reports home to Rome?—more thickly populated to the square mile than any other country in the world, rich in beauty of landscape and street scenes—is being that queen a life too heavily embroidered with circumstance and pomp, not to speak of duty, to be any joy at all?

Sue, beating fragrant powder over her lily neck before she trots down to the oh-so-familiar office, pensively wonders whether it isn't pretty much fun to be a queen, young and beautiful, especially and particularly in this exact period when nations are too generally uncomfortable in other ways to bother to make the remaining kings and queens so. To be a queen in a country that seems happy, and loves you!

Let's go back, Sally and Sue, back through the files of the papers and of the years, and look at Astrid before she was a queen.

We see a really quaint little girl with short, dark hair, bright eyes, a chubby face that is radiant with demure good nature. She is gotten up in a little white frock and enveloping it, and almost her small self, is a dark figured apron as shiny as oil-cloth, glazed to keep a small girl clean. This is a little girl who, when born, lay on her lace pillows in the effulgence of several crowns, and of yet another that was yet invisible. Her mother the sister of the King of Denmark; her father the brother of the King of Sweden—Princess Ingeborg and Prince Carl. The future also held a king for a husband, and another, a much loving and famous king, for a father-in-law.

But the little girl in the glazed apron, with the short, dark hair and the chubby, good little face, was not brought up to feel all this weight of crowns in any way. The little princess had two princess sisters, and one seems to have been nearer in age, and the chief playmate.

So there were Martha, Margaret and Astrid, three little girls in a Swedish castle, with a wise mother and father. They had both freedom and discipline, play and childish duties, as any well-reared children in Sally's and Sue's country have. Later there was a young Prince Carl, Jr., who will be left completely out, as he probably would have been in the doings of three sisters.

We see the little Astrid cooking, part in play and part in sober learning, for the playhouse at the family castle was fitted with a complete little kitchen. We see her washing her doll clothes on a tiny washboard in a huge pan, her sleeves rolled up to bare plump arms.

Taller than she is the figure with an arrestingly beautiful little face surrounded by a cloud of dark curls—the face of a storied Princess; of the bigger little sister Martha. They pick flowers together. They house-keep, wash and cook. The long garden avenues of the summer home at Fridhem are alive with their laughter.

The well-known "scooter" of other children whose homes are not castles goes flying along under the urge of the lengthening legs of Astrid. All wooled and furred, the same little girl learns early to swoop along on the foot-wings of her native country. Of course she can ski! And there were frowning hours over linen and needle, learning to take small stitches and embroider blue and red flowers.

Queens of fairy tales combined glitter and pomp with an amusing ability to walk right out in the kitchen and bake! The childhood of Astrid of Belgium was the making of a queen of that quaint character. THAT was why she later pushed her own baby-carriage in the sunny green park and rather took the Belgians aback, at the same time they adored her. THAT was why she cooked for her young Crown Prince Leopold when he came a-courting, at the same time she won his heart away with the glamour that must hover about a pretty princess.

But more of the young-girl-to-be next time, Sally and Sue. This is a picture of the child Princess Astrid, gently and wisely reared, to be happy and useful and kind—the doings of a quaint little girl, slightly funny, as any dear little girl the world over can be.

Keepsake Box Reveals Mementoes of a Broken Romance

There was such sincerity in my father's voice as he called me "beautiful," and asked me to stand still and let him look at me, that I felt my soul getting a bit less abashed at the vanity which had made me decide that I need not fear comparison with Edith Fairfax when she, Dicky and the rest should return from the moonlight drive to the ocean.

But there was also a mournful quality in his tones, which made me forget all petty consideration of my own affairs, and long only to comfort him. His voice, his words were an unconscious, fresh betrayal of the sorrow and remorse which have haunted him since the time—after his flight from home in my infancy—when he realized that mother was still the one woman in the world for him, and that he had forfeited the right to see her or me because of his going away with her best friend.

"I am so glad I look like her, father," I said softly, "and what makes me happier—I think Baby Faith resembles her strikingly. I have a baby picture of mother—"

"You have that picture?" he said eagerly. "But, of course, I might have known that you would have it."

"Would you like me to get it for you, father?" I asked gently.

The eyes that looked up at me were suddenly like lighted lamps.

"Could you—without trouble?" he asked.

"Of course, I could. Wait for me."

I turned and sped back to my room, blessing the methodical nature inherited from my mother, and her training, also. I knew just where those sacred relics of my mother were—in an old japanned box of hers, within a small, ornamental chest, wherein I keep my most precious treasures and keepsakes. Taking the box from the chest, I carried it with me to the stairway again, finding my father waiting at the top of the stairs, looking almost boyish in his eagerness.

"Let me carry that for you," he said, and I knew that there was more than courtesy in the request. I knew that he would feel subtly nearer to my little mother's spirit in carrying the box, which also must be one of his memories.

I handed it to him, and he took it reverently, holding it, pressed against him with one arm, while he offered the other to me. We went down the stairway together, and out to the veranda, where he ensconced me on the couch hammock with pillows and blankets, tucking me in as fussily as if he were a young mother with her first baby.

He laid the box upon the low table near the couch, while he saw that I was comfortable and protected from any possible chilliness. Then he drew a low chair to the side of the couch and prepared to sit down, but I put out a protesting hand.

"You're just as apt to get chilled as I am," I said firmly. "I refuse to talk, or to show you anything, unless you get an extra coat of some kind."

He bent over and kissed me warmly.

SENT FOR COAT

"You shall see what a beautiful example of obedience I shall set you," he said tenderly, and went on the word into the house, returning almost at once with his figure, which is above medium height, encased in an overcoat that almost reached his ankles, and could have wrapped another man beside himself in its folds.

"It is a good thing, sometimes, to hobnob with giants," he said, smiling, as he settled himself comfortably in the low chair and drew Harry Underwood's coat closer around him. Then he drew the box toward him, with reverent tenderness. I had put the key in the lock before taking it from my trunk, and as he touched it he looked over at me with shining eyes.

"May I?" he asked, and the humility in his voice struck me as a blow might have done. Always he approaches that long tragedy with a remorse which seems never to lessen in strength.

LOOK THROUGH BOX

"But, surely," I said with heartiness. "That is why I brought it down."

"Thank you!" The words were but a breath. And with fingers curiously unsteady, he turned the key and lifted the lid. Then he sat looking down into the contents of the box with the face of one who gazes into an open grave. I knew that for the moment I did not exist—that he had gone back years into the past.

"My Margaret! My Faith!" he murmured. "How often we have looked into this box together!"

He seemed to remember me, then, and raised his eyes to mine, as I watched him.

"You have kept it just as she left it," he said tensely.

"Yes, father," I answered, and watched him, wonderingly, while he reverently removed the small relics—photographs, jewelry, my mother's diploma and her wedding certificate, which she had kept for me, and keepsakes which she had treasured of my small triumphs.

When he had emptied the box, he took a penknife from his pocket and inserted the blade underneath the edge of the faded, satin-padded lining, which I always had thought was firmly adhered to the bottom of the box. To my surprise, it was fastened only to a thick board-like parchment, and the whole came easily away, disclosing a cavity, the existence of which I never had suspected.

How to Keep Well

:-:

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Fear Caused by Disease Symptoms

For generations the presence of blood in the sputum was interpreted as a sign of the "white plague," or "consumption." This alarming sign was called "hemoptysis" as a result of great significance, but not necessarily as a symptom of tuberculosis. Many persons are unduly alarmed by the sight of blood in the sputum. They fear they have tuberculosis and too often and unwisely keep to themselves knowledge of the experience.

Dr. Copeland

I knew a man who for many months noticed blood in his sputum. He feared to consult a physician. He thought he had tuberculosis and did not want to be told he must discontinue his work. You can imagine his joy when on a regular visit to his dentist, a rough tooth was found to be cutting his mouth and that was the cause of the blood in the sputum.

This symptom can often be traced to minor troubles like a slight scratch or erosion in the throat. It is common in the sputum of sufferers from chronic bronchitis, severe coughs, asthma and other afflictions that involve the lungs. It is also encountered in sore and inflamed throats, inflamed tonsils, and in pharyngitis or laryngitis.

It is true that hemoptysis is a common symptom in tuberculosis. But not by any means does blood in the sputum always mean tuberculosis. Of course, it should never be considered as a trivial matter, and every effort should be made to find and correct the underlying cause.

If you have this symptom, do not jump to the conclusion you have tuberculosis, but set your mind at rest by getting at the truth. Consult with your physician who will take the necessary steps to relieve the trouble, whatever it may be. When there are no other evidences of illness tuberculosis is very likely to be the last of what might ail you. In that disease, fatigue, loss of weight, night sweats and persistent cough are found.

When these other symptoms are present, definite tests are made to confirm or disprove the diagnosis of tuberculosis. Perhaps the most reliable of all is the sputum test. In this, the sputum is examined for the germs of tuberculosis. Repeated tests may be necessary. An X-ray examination of the lungs will aid in making the diagnosis.

Early recognition of this disease means early recovery. Complete cure is possible when prompt diagnosis of the disease is made.

Too often constitutional defects are overlooked or neglected because of thoughtlessness or carelessness. If you have any doubt or are worried about some abnormality, consult with your physician.

Answers to Health Queries

J. T. Q.—My knees crack and snap whenever I bend them. This is not only annoying, but embarrassing as well. What would you advise? 2—I am very fond of salt and use it freely. I have been told that it is injurious to the system. Is this true?

A.—This may be due to a rheumatic tendency. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2—Salt used in moderation should not prove harmful unless there is some underlying condition or disturbance which is aggravated by its use. In this case your doctor will advise you.

C. A. P. Q.—What do you advise for oily hair? 2.—What should a girl of 20, 5 feet 3 inches tall weigh?

A.—Brush the hair daily and use a good tonic. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question. 2—You should weigh about 122 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height, as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

J. J. F. Q.—What do you advise for a fallen colon? Will this affect the functioning of the other organs.

A.—This condition should have specific attention. Yes, if not properly held in place it causes pressure on other organs. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Contract Bridge

:-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

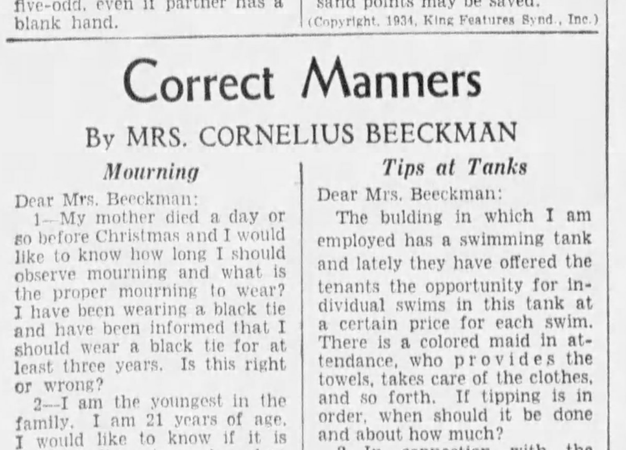
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Test Hand

Today's hand was given by my husband in a recent country-wide problem contest held by a magazine. The correct bidding on the hand is most interesting and I am relating it here.

North, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	4 ♠ (1)	4 N T (2)
Pass	6 ♡ (3)	Pass (4)	Pass
Pass (5)

1—This hand is an ideal example of an Opening Pre-emptive four-spade bid. With a passing partner, South knows for certain that the opponents must have a game and very probably a Slam. With the eight-card spade suit, the call cannot be severely penalized, and it may serve to keep East and West from arriving at their best possible contract.

2—A Forcing bid. This four-notrump Overcall is a conventional bid which asks partner to take out in his best suit. It naturally can be made only on a very strong hand, as it practically guarantees a contract of five-odd, even if partner has a blank hand.

3—The East player must realize the full meaning of his partner's four-notrump bid and act accordingly. If the West hand is strong enough to guarantee a contract of five-odd even if East should hold only four little hearts, the possession of six cards of the suit to the Ace-Knave-Ten justifies East's contracting for the Slam. West must hold either a void, a singleton or the Ace of spades.

4—South should not bid any more, even though he is certain of seven tricks in his own hand if played at spades. A five-trick or 1000-point penalty is not worthwhile against non-vulnerable opponents.

5—In the contest a great many solvers had the North player now sacrifice with six spades, and on a Double Dummy inspection of the hands this sacrifice proves worthwhile—600 points against approximately 980. However, the percentages do not favor the North player making this bid. Despite his partner's four-spade bid he should expect his singleton Ace of spades to take one trick defensively, and he has no reason not to hope that his partner can take another trick with a side King or even a side Ace. Furthermore, North's own Queen of clubs may conceivably come in handy. Although it turns out that six hearts is an absolute laydown for East and West, North cannot know that, and he should not take a sacrifice which will save 400 or 500 points at the outside when there is a chance that the whole thousand points may be saved.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My mother died a day or so before Christmas and I would like to know how long I should observe mourning and what is the proper mourning to wear? I have been wearing a black tie and have been informed that I should wear a black tie for at least three years. Is this right or wrong?

2—I am the youngest in the family. I am 21 years of age. I would like to know if it is proper to listen to music and go to movies and places of entertainment? EUGENE.

1—Mourning customs and clothes are very different in the last few years from what they used to be. Now people do about as they wish, governed only by their own reactions. People seldom wear "deep mourning" any more, but they do usually wear dark clothes for several months or for a year. If you wish you may wear dark suits and a black tie for a few months to come.

2—By all means listen to music, for this is one of the greatest of solaces, and I don't see why you shouldn't go to the movies occasionally and with discretion. But going to dances and such kind of "entertainment" wouldn't be in good taste.

Tips at Tanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The bulding in which I am employed has a swimming tank and lately they have offered the tenants the opportunity for individual swims in this tank at a certain price for each swim. There is a colored maid in attendance, who provides the towels, takes care of the clothes, and so forth. If tipping is in order, when should it be done and about how much?

2—In connection with the same pool, these is also a membership proposition covering unlimited use of the tank and gymnasium privleges, at a price covering six months membership. In this case, how and when would one tip? B.

I am sure that you will find that tipping of this attendant will be taken for granted, since the service will be a personal one. If you plan to join on the so-much-a-swim basis, you might fee from 10 cents to 25 cents, according to your wishes. If you join on the six months basis, and if you have the same attendant each time, you might fee each week or each month, as you wish. Either would be better than waiting for the end of the time of membership.

These Pictures Are Easy to Do

What youngster does not learn and love the poems of Robert Louis Stevenson? Here is a favorite one, developed in two nursery pictures. These have been designed to tell the story in the simplest of stitches, and are very striking carried out in colors. Each picture could be used alone, although the two are a pair. The pictures measure 11x15 inches.

Pattern 631 (the winter picture) and pattern 632 (the summer picture) each comes to you with a transfer pattern of the picture, complete directions for embroidering and framing.

Send 10 cents for each pattern (20 cents for both) to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

On ship or shore you will find use for a frock of pastel suede finished silk crepe. The bodice has surplice bands of inverted, stitched tucks, and the brief sleeves are entirely knife-pleated. A band of the stitched tucked material makes the belt.

Diadems in daylight are simulated by some of the new hats. The upturned brim of a small, silk-straw sailor hat is anchored to a head-encircling band made of braided velvet chosen to exactly match the color of your hair.

An old friend returns in the form of that lovely fabric, challis. It is now extensively worn down South both day and evening, and will soon be seen here. A charming evening frock in white challis has a printed design of confetti dots in gay reds and blues, and a wide red satin sash.

Be ethereal in one of the new, long, tight frocks with lily necklines. The original model of black heavy crepe has long, tight sleeves almost to the knuckles of the hand. Three white waxed silk calla lilies high around the neck giving a frame to the face that is most flattering.

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Trust smart women to choose this frock as their favorite for afternoon wear—its youthfulness and smartness is so typical of spring, 1934. The bow—large and flowing—introduces a gay note of contrast, it has attractive sleeves set in raglan fashion and smart seamings in both bodice and skirt. A monotone, in one of the delicate pastel shades would be lovely—or a gay, splashy printed silk or crepe, if you've a mind. The bow might be fashioned of satin ribbon, taffeta or organdy. A delightful success if you make it yourself—and it's not at all difficult with the sewing instructor included.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

SLOVAKS HONOR PITTSBURGHERS

Two Pittsburghers hold important positions on the new official board of the National Slovak Society. At the elections yesterday which terminated the two-week convention here Anton J. Katchmar, of Rankin, was elected supreme secretary, and Michael Schram, of Homestead, supreme treasurer.

The president, who, according to a convention ruling, must make his home in Pittsburgh is Nicholas Kovac, of Bridgeport, Conn., and the vice president, John Pankuch, of Cleveland.

Others from this district elected to office were Joseph Zary, editor; Ferdinand Bury, treasurer, and John A. Kocur, supreme court. They will assume their duties May 1, instead of January 1.

President Kovac, however, will take office immediately, replacing former President George Tomascik, of Wilkes-Barre, whose resignation was accepted by the convention. He resigned with the contention that convention executives were partial.

In closing the final session, Chairman Peter P. Hletka thanked the delegates for the honor bestowed upon him and announced that the next convention would be held in 1937 in Hazelton.

JUNIOR PATROL

We hope all our Junior Patrol members like to talk things over in the meetings, fellows!

It's good for a fellow to be able to talk about interesting things so that people like to hear him. A club meeting is a swell place for members to practice up.

Maybe the captain could assign a topic for each of the members to talk about at the next meeting. Or maybe some of your members would volunteer to make a little speech.

Best of all, it's lots of fun to sit around a table or in a circle and "talk it over" generally. Of course, the captain should make everybody take a turn talking so that one or two members don't do it all.

We have a letter from Eleanor and David Harris, of Pittsburgh. But that isn't a very good address. Write and let us know where you live, Eleanor and David. We will send you a copy of the code if you give us your address.

One of our new members today is Helen Marie Joyce, of 1254 Tennessee avenue, Pittsburgh. Her brother, William, is captain of a patrol, and we hope she can start one for the girls in her neighborhood soon.

This letter is from Arthur Fauvie, of California, Pa. He sends eight pledges and says he is captain of his club. He writes:

"Every Sunday night about 8 p. m. we have a boxing match. My brother and I have boxing gloves. I hope my club will do as the rules say on the pledges. I read the Junior Patrol every day. Tell Snuggins I can make chocolate cake too."

Now we are going to look for two more pledges from you, Arthur, so that we can send you an armband as soon as you have been elected captain. Who fights in your boxing matches? It's good sport and good exercise if both fellows are about the same size.

And Edward Kukar, of Van Voorhis, Pa., Box 193, sends eight pledges. All you need is two more to start a patrol.

CHAPTER XXVI.

It was midnight. The moon floated in a pale cloud low over the hills when Pippin crossed the garden to the porch. She stood a moment looking after Gregg; conscious of figures against the dark bushes, tenderly bidding each other goodnight. Like a scene from a play—Romeo haunting the garden.

She went swiftly through the living room, where the radio played softly, murmurs of voices drifting through the shadows. She closed her door and sat awhile, dreaming into the starry dimness. She saw herself walking through the streets of a bizarre, colorful place like Algiers.

She stole to the bureau and, kneeling, took Kevin's picture from its hiding place.

With a sudden melancholy, she pulled the photograph from its envelope and stared at the dark, tender, imperious young eyes. As she knelt there the door opened. Pippin jumped to her feet. Kevin's picture fell from her shaking hands. It lay, face upward, on the floor.

Vivian glanced at it, then at Pippin.

"Can I look at him?"

"Of course."

Vivian picked up the picture, studied it, her breath quickening:

"Is he yours?"

"I've known him all my life. He's like an older brother."

A Keepsake

Vivian gave a slow smile into Pippin's crimson face.

"He's not the kind of man we use for a brother. Why haven't you brought him around. Afraid?"

"He's in Europe. He left before I started college."

"Gone a long time, isn't he? Ye gods! I can imagine what a face like that did to a kid of 16. You're in love with him yet or you would not have his picture hidden away in your lingerie."

"Just keep it for old time sake," said Pippin, gaining composure. "I was mad about him at the tender age of 15. I'm quite cured of him now."

"And that's why you kneel on the floor brooding over his picture in the midnight. I could kiss that mouth myself."

Vivian dropped Kevin's picture to the bureau. She sat on the window ledge, her arms folded and staring into the night.

"What fools we are to let ourselves go for a wild love like that. It can't last. It never does."

"It does last," said Pippin, thinking of David and what Helena meant to him. More now perhaps than in the earlier time.

"Not at the crest! The splendor goes. Always."

"They say it gets riches—deeper. The memories of sorrows borne together, battles fought."

"A beautiful, vain hope, Pippin! Much better if we could skim along the surface in a gay, breezy kind of love. As you could with Gregg. I wonder why we want to be torn to pieces, all our sensations intensified? Did you ever stop to think how frightfully the one you love can make you suffer? Without intending it. Nothing can be done about us! Something in our chemistry reacts to their spell. We're the 'All or Nothing' type.

"We pour ourselves out. We've got to. Nobody ever outsmarts his Fate. Pray that your older brother remains in Europe and you can keep out of it for a few years yet."

Not long after this, Vivian and Pippin passed the chapel. Vivian walked in and sat in one of the deep pews. It was sunset. The stained glass windows were aflame; all the figures glowed and a pale amber radiance moved through the shadows in the dim nave.

With a rapt expression, Vivian gazed at the mosaic of "The Last Supper" which forms the background for the white marble altar. It was rich yet soft with color; it seemed all lighted. She sank to her knees, her face buried in her hands. She remained like this, motionless, as though Time had ceased to be. Pippin wondered if she had fallen asleep.

When finally she got up, her eyes had a dreamy excitement. They were beautiful, like the eyes of the blue-robed saint in the stained glass window.

She shook back her hair as though breaking a spell.

"Sometimes I think I'd like to be a nun. I'd like to kneel all night in prayer. I'd like to hurl myself with blind consuming passion into a great sacrifice for humanity. Lose yourself for a moment to find yourself forever. Why do we never long touch the heights, Pippin? Life can yield so much more beauty than we take."

Meets Boy Friend

They walked down the steps and through the inner quadrangle where the twilight murmured softly with a deep cloistered peace.

A young man approached. He wore no hat. He had bright hair—thick—brushed back, his head well set. He looked like a statue of the Greek athlete with a lightness and strength in the perfect proportions of his body. He had a frank, boyish, engaging face with an attractive, deeply cut mouth and happy eyes. He was Sheridan Grove and of all men who sought her, the only one Vivian wanted. She had loved him a year.

He took Vivian's hand and held it. Her cheeks, usually white, stained faintly. Her strange, seductive eyes raised—waiting for his. Their two beings seemed to be flowing together in this clasp of their hands; this smile of their lips. They forgot Pippin. They went on murmuring—holding to each other.

Pippin was at the garden before Vivian, flushed and excited, caught up with her. She said breathlessly:

"I didn't mean to talk so long. I haven't seen Sherry since Tuesday morning. He wants to take me to dinner. You're not going out tonight, Pippin. Will you lend us your car?"

The infant flush spread up to Vivian's eyes which were now glowing and happy.

"It's a beautiful night. Look at that sky—all flames. We thought we'd drive through the Big Basin. There's a little resort there."

"You have a date with Dick Hazlitt."

"I know. I'll have to break it. Some things are important."

True Friends

They went up to their room. Vivian began hastily to dress.

"Can I borrow your black velvet dress and the black hat?"

"Would you like to take my charming manner along, too?"

"Would I! I wish I had all the charm of all the women that have ever lived?"

"Are they worth it, Vivian? I wonder!"

"You do? What would you give, old thing, to have your absent lover's arms around you tonight? Under the moon!"

She took up the perfume and sprayed it through her hair and about her throat. Then she cocked Pippin's little velvet hat on the side of her head. The black dress enhanced her pallor and her hair flaming against the hat.

Pippin said:

"You look oriental, Vivian. You look exciting."

"Thanks for the makings. You're a friend to have."

There were two enormous sleeping porches in the great, rambling old house. One of these porches was equipped with double-decker beds. Even so, there was not room for all, so Pippin slept in a box couch in the study room she shared with Vivian. It was a crude room, with a huge, built-in closet, an ancient bureau and their two desks. But they made it attractive with gay new curtains, a chaise longue and a rich plum-colored rug Chickie sent them.

Pippin missed the view and the sea breeze in her face as she slept. But it was nice having a companion like Vivian.

She awakened. It seemed the middle of the night. Vivian tiptoed about the room. She wore a lavender kimono. The moonlight caught the violet overtones; caught the deep red in Vivian's hair. She looked like a streak of fire, moving through the shadows.

Pippin sat up, switching the little lamp at her bed.

Walk in Moonlight

"Don't flash the light," Vivian flung in a soft, excited whisper. She came and sat on the edge of the couch. "It's only a little after 12, Pippin. It's simply gorgeous out. I never saw such a moon. Get on your clothes and let's take a walk."

Pippin pulled on a warm jersey dress. They went stealthily down the long, creaking hall and down the creaking, uncarpeted back stairs. This led to a small passage opening on the great, empty chapter room. They crossed this on tiptoe, not wishing to awaken the house mother, whose room adjoined. A door led to the garden.

They went through a secluded, tree-shaded avenue. Up hills until there were no more houses. The night was warm with a soft breeze, and the sky full of stars. The moon was red like a dying sun.

Vivian clasped her hands about her knees and gazed into the dark valley.

"It's unearthly—it hurts, it's so beautiful."

"Do you mean the night? Or love? Or Sherry?"

"I was thinking of the night—of everything."

"Why did you come home so soon? You had two hours more."

Vivian drew a deep, tight breath.

"You can't stand too much of some things. I wanted to get away and think. Sherry asked me to give up everyone and go with him alone."

"Will you?"

"Will I? I wish I could think of something I wouldn't do if he asked me. He wanted to marry me, tonight. I wanted to marry him. Life should be simple like that when two people love each other."

CONFEDERATE COMMANDER GEN. LEE SIGNING SURRENDER AT APPOMATTOX

Gen. Grant, besieging Petersburg since June, 1864, tightened his grip gradually around Richmond, Confederate capital. A decisive battle was fought at Five Forks, south of Petersburg, where Gen. Sheridan, first repulsed, defeated the Confederates April 1, 1865. Petersburg fell April 2, Richmond the following day, both evacuated, their supplies were destroyed by the Confederates.

Lee retreated westward intending a union with Gen. Johnston in North Carolina, frustrated by Sheridan's wedge. Pursued by Grant's main army, Lee surrendered at Appomattox, Va., April 9, 1865. Johnston, defeated by Gen. Sherman moving from Savannah, Ga., surrendered April 26; Gen. Taylor, Alabama, May 4; Gen. Kirby Smith, Arkansas, May 26. The Civil War ended, the Union was saved, slaves freed, but at what a price! Half a million Americans were either slain or wounded, costs and property damage reaching into billions of dollars. EVANGELINE AND GABRIEL

Evangeline, a poem in hexameters (1847) by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-82) appeals for its tenderness of feeling, simplicity and picturesque descriptions. Evangeline and Gabriel, recently betrothed, are separated when they are driven away by the British with other Acadians. Gabriel prospers as farmer in Louisiana, then migrates to the West. Evangeline, searching years for him, becomes a nun. Finally she finds him dying in an alms-house. United, they are parted by death. (American Literature)

GLANDS: CO-ORDINATORS

Harmony of organ functions in human and animal bodies is brought about by nervous and chemical co-ordination. The former is served by the master tissue, the nervous system; the latter by the glands of internal secretion. These, at various points of body (some shown in above diagram), are all transfused by blood, from which they retain materials to produce secretions (hormons, meaning agitators) imparting them to the blood for general distribution (without previous collection in a duct); they are also called ductless glands. FLOTATION MACHINE

Concentration, the separation of valuable portions of an ore, is an important step to make metallurgical processes profitable. Concentration may be mechanical, magnetic, electrostatic or flotation.

In the flotation machine (above) broken ore, water, some oil and sulphuric acid are churned into a froth in chamber A by propeller C on shaft B. This passes through D into flotation compartment E. Sulphides and metal particles stick to the bubbles, are floated to surface and scraped off by revolving skimmer S into container G, giving the concentrated ore.

THINNING—CROPPING TREES

There are two methods for economical lumbering. Low method: Smaller and defective trees are cut each 10 years from even aged stand, the final cut producing saw timber of good size and value. High method (trees are of different ages): Every 10 years the larger trees are cut (common practice). (General Science)

NAPOLEON, CZAR ALEXANDER I MEET ON NIEMEN (Tilsit)

The victory at Trafalgar (1805) left Britain mistress of the seas, but Napoleon remained master on the continent. Shattering Austria and the Holy Roman empire (1805-1806) Napoleon established under his "protection" the Confederation of the Rhine, the kingdoms of Holland, Naples and the Duchy of Berg with his closest relatives as rulers. In the same year he was victorious at Jena, Prenzlau, defeating Prussia, entering Berlin. In 1807 he subdued the Eastern Prussian provinces, though they were aided by Russia. Decisive battles were fought at Eylau and Friedland. June 25, 1807, Napoleon and Czar Alexander I met on a raft on the Niemen River to ally and to divide the world between themselves. (World Hist.)

WATERPROOFING OF BUILDING FOUNDATIONS

If a drainage system is impracticable, building foundations have to be waterproofed. For complete protection, both may be done. Above: The membrane method of waterproofing; surrounding the foundation with layers of felt, burlap canvas, cemented together with tar, pitch or asphalt. Other methods consist in impregnating or coating foundation with impervious material.

All Quiet On College Fronts

This was a peaceful winter for college editors and deans.

Remember the literary wars of 1933-34?

Eleven sophomoric Horace Greeleys were expelled by a short dozen indignant college deans. Mostly because the varsity team had three games postponed and lost the rest of the schedule.

The young editors claimed that all of the games should have been postponed. When attacking the college teams the editors first make the dean the fullback.

Naturally, the dean drove up with a pay load of indignation. One word led to another. In the ensuing riot on the campus the protesting students figured they had scored a tremendous victory for science and research because they had marched by some important buildings.

When a student starts out to die for his ideals he makes careful preparations. First, he borrows his roomy's old clothes. He doesn't want to lose a 35-cent crease in his best junior prom pants.

Then, he writes a letter to his dad informing the old man he is about to perish from educational malnutrition, rubs vaseline on his head and ears so nobody can get a good grip and fares forth to conquer or arbitrate.

Now, the dean is a wise old mugg, who knows that youth thinks its day consists of howling in the night. So, when they start to burn the dean in effigy, the dean supplies the wet matches. When they sing derogatory lyrics beneath his bower window the dean accompanies them on the harpischord.

When honor has been avenged and the cold egg sandwiches consumed the students shorten their lines of communications by retreating to the village billiard parlor.

The next day, the college editor is summoned to the mat and takes all the blame. Such Spartanlike heroism compels Gutzon Borgham to carve the editor's imperishable features on a bag of marbles.

The college paper prints a retraction saying it had been misinformed of the seriousness of the event by the United States Geographical Society acting in collaboration with a brilliant freshman.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Is the nail on the little toe thickened and deformed? It should not be. It tells you plainly enough that it has suffered from tight shoes, or narrow ones. If the cuticle has banked up in a hard mass around it, don't try to cut it away with a knife; that is a dangerous practice. Every night apply olive oil, friction it in, cover with a pad of gauze. Every morning soak the foot in warm water to which soda has been added, smooth off the cutaneous growth with a pumice stone.

When facial tissues start to sag you must regard hot water as a beauty foe. Use tepid for the nightly scrubbing, follow along with a cold rinsing and at least once a day scurry over the skin surface with an ice cube. Compound an astringent by combining one ounce of witch hazel, one-fourth ounce of boric acid, one-half pint of camphor water. Apply every morning after the cold water freshening. Lay on the heavy massage cream at bedtime.

If a water wave gives up the ghost after a day or two then it was not thoroughly dried or the operator formed a pattern that was contrary to the wave inclinations of the hair itself. Even the straightest hair will or will not be placed in a certain manner. There are invisible wave lines in every topcrest. The clever operator sees them with her mind's eye and lets hair have its own way.

You can roll them thar hips away. Lie on the floor on the back. Lift the left leg high, roll to the right, stretching the leg and touching the floor with the toes. Back again to first base, repeat 10 times: get the right leg in action. Heavy pressure and muscle stretching form a combination that knocks fat cells from the anatomical premises. Good fun, too. Gives the family a big laugh, if they stand by.

The Canal Opposition

Steel and Railroad Companies Grievances—Brief Comment On Local News.

J. A. Farquharson, an official of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, opposed, at a hearing held by the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, the proposal of Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of Army Engineers, that the Beaver and Mahoning rivers be made navigable between the Ohio River and Struthers, O., which is near Youngstown. His opposition was based on the theory that the improvement would result in loss of railroad traffic.

Mr. Farquharson could see only one side of the question. This was clearly revealed in his intimation that in seeking cheaper transportation the steel industry is fighting the railroads, and in "fighting the railroads it is biting the hand that feeds it." Some of the local steel companies have taken the position that in view of the enormous freight tonnage they gave the railroads, the railroads, in charging high rates, were biting the hand that fed them.

*It was this feeling that led some of the steel com-*panies to build their own railroad lines, such as the Carnegie's Bessemer road to Lake Erie, and to develop barge transportation on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. But although this took some traffic away from the railroads, it did not cripple them; on the contrary they had good earnings and paid good dividends until a few years ago, when the industrial depression set in.

There is reason, accordingly, to believe that when business again assumes normal proportions there will be plenty for both the railroads and the waterways. Indeed there is some ground for supposing, in the light of experience, that the waterways, by helping to develop new industries and to expand old ones, and by serving as feeders to the railroads, will increase the business of the latter.

It was the improvement of the Monongahela many years ago, offering cheap transportation, that led to the development of the coal mines and the establishment of steel mills, and gave the railroads the heavy tonnage that they have taken out of that valley. The Allegheny valley has even richer natural resources, but because that river was not navigable until recent years for more than a few miles, it has not enjoyed the industrial development and the railroads have not obtained the business from it that they have got from the Monongahela Valley.

Regardless of whether or not the railroads lose business, the development of our inland waterways is desirable because of the benefit it would confer on the people as a whole. It is the greatest good of the greatest number that must be considered. When the original railroads were built they took business from the stage coaches and wagoners, but that fact was not allowed to stand in the way of human progress. Nor should a possible loss to the railroads be allowed to prevent the use of the waterways.

*The Beaver and Mahoning Rivers should be im-*proved to Struthers, and the waterway should be extended to Lake Erie by the construction of a canal. The Allegheny River should be made navigable, by the building of additional dams and locks, all the way to Olean, N. Y. And both the Allegheny and the Monongahela should be further improved by the construction of storage reservoirs for flood control, as advocated by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh and the Tri-State Authority.

The candidates for Congress for whom we are to vote in May should tell the people what their attitude is on the waterway project. We need representatives in Washington who can be depended upon to work persistently and intelligently for the development of rivers and canals. It was Pittsburgh's commanding position on three rivers that started the city on the road to greatness, and further improvement of the rivers will make the city still greater and thus increase the opportunities of all of us to prosper.

*Another "hex" murder in the Pennsylvania Ger-*man country brings shame upon the state. An elderly woman is killed with a "magic" bullet by a young man, who says she was a "hex" (German for witch) and had bewitched him. Every two or three years, it seems, we have such a murder—a terrible commentary on our lack of enlightenment. The public schools throughout Pennsylvania might well give some attention to the importance of wiping out superstition.

We in Pittsburgh need not plume ourselves on the fact that belief in "hexerei" is not prevalent here; for multitudes of our supposedly most intelligent people have a superstitious belief that is just as silly—the belief that the number "13" has some mystical power to injure one. Our right to call ourselves civilized may well be questioned so long as our principal hotels dare not number the thirteenth floor "13" because guests are afraid to sleep on a floor so numbered.

There is really less excuse for a well-to-do hotel patron's standing in superstitious awe of "13" than there may be for an ignorant person in the Pennsylvania German country to believe in witches; for there are allusions to witches in sacred literature, but we know of no "authority" of any kind that can be pointed to in justification of the childish fear of a number.

A man convicted of attempting to "fix" a jury has been sentenced by Judge James H. Gray to pay a fine of $500 and serve a year in the workhouse. It is to be hoped this will be taken as an example of what is likely to befall other "jury fixers" and will have a salutary effect. Embracery is not always the easiest crime to detect, and District Attorney Andrew T. Park deserves a great deal of credit for his vigilance in combatting it.

The Department of Revenue at Harrisburg reports that at the beginning of this week less than 500,000 of the 1,400,000 registered motor vehicles in Pennsylvania have been officially inspected. The inspection period closes next Saturday, and autoists who do not have the orange stickers on their windshields by then will get into trouble. What a pity that most of us do not overcome our habit of procrastination in matters like this!

A secret that has puzzled scholars for centuries has been solved. The writing of the mysterious Etruscans has been read at last. By deciphering six words on a statuette's leg Prof. Pironti has found the key to the entire language of the race that ruled Italy before the Romans. The fascinating story is told in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the big magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

'What Shall It Profit a Man?' -:- -:- By Nelson Harding

Down the long and lonely roadway,
Down the street that leads to nowhere,
For all doors are closed against him,
Goes the fugitive from Justice

Carrying a load of riches,
But the golden keys avail not
In the weary search for refuge.
Wherein, therefore, lies the profit?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 24.—This time of year everybody is twittery with the ipuses. The gait of the caged bear looking for escape. Young men hurl themselves into the new cause. Old Boys nitker and write sappy letters that they may be read to 12 perfect strangers. Girls affect a coiffure revealing their ears, and simper.

Grandmas sneak off for a few sly lessons in the rhumba. Imagined splendors pop into humdrum lives. Today I was thinking of a black-braided tan suit of English whipcord with a billiard-table green vest and a pearl bowler. Every spring I want to let go this way. The sartorial taste of Sitting Bull's widow!

But I hate to content myself with some modest Roy W. Howard pattern, remindful of the blanket on last year's derby winner. And a tie that is not red enough by six deep dips. Today, in the Ritz foyer, I noticed a sprig flirting back his hair and twitching his tie before a mirror.

Later, when he came into the coffee room with a slinky stunner suggesting Elizabeth Young, his lapel flowered with a gardenia. This time of year uncoils that sort of technique. I've been wanting to meet the lady who runs that avenue charm school and ask her to project her personality once for me. I love to collect samples.

Speaking of escape, Roscoe Peacock has been reading Elsie Robinson's fine serialization in Cosmopolitan, "I Wanted Out!" As prince of correctors he wonders about the title. Once, locked in a room, he beat upon the door and shouted, "I want out! I want out!" A Britisher with oracular finality of judgment corrected him saying: "You mean you want to get out; it isn't 'out' you want." A solecism or localism I do not know. But when I beat upon a door I want out!

The Boston at intervals arouses the household at night by standing in center of the bedroom giving a perfect imitation of a donkey's bray. It is a nightmarish exhibition over which he is bewildered while slowly awakening. When company comes further to shame him I intone: "To the left of the curio hall we have Fiji, the one legged camel. On the right Hinny, the Hee-Haw, half dog, half donkey, etc." He's stone deaf but he suspects some sort of kidding and goes off in a corner, squats on one haunch and looks pensive.

The last of Broadway's romanticists to me was the morose and tight-lipped gambler, Arnold Rothstein. He looked upon its denizens with the suspicions they deserved, sitting with his back to the wall in case of a dust-up in public places. He justified this distrust when he was pistoled to death after beng trapped in a hotel room by a mysterious telephone call. He played a dangerous game every moment, knew it and refused to name the assassins who mortally wounded him. A wicked fellow, full of deceits, he lived with a long lost bravado, hard and dangerously. Today Broadway is in hands of the milksops.

Children, more than those of any other age, have been made free. There are no longer little martyrs breaking ice in water jugs for the morning wash and eating dabs of rough porridge. No more are they produced in over-plus, appearing as so many vultures preying on mother's strength until she sinks into galloping consumption. My neighboring playmate when I was juvenile was under such restraint he was even taught to cry quietly. Today's children are noisy little Princes of Versailles in care of maids and valets in enormous nurseries that are fairylands of toy surprises. I'd like to scream from dotage it's nonsense. But it isn't. They are magnificent with fair hair beautifully brushed, eyes clear, skin rosy, well trained, sweet natured, very truthful. But most important of all, knowing no fear whatever.

Occasionally on wakeful nights I climb into my clothes and wander up the street to Reuben's. Few of the people there interest me. Mostly it is one of those vast congeries of brash nonentities. But I like to stand in the doorway and talk to the tuxedoed M. Reuben himself. To find a man who looks upon life hopefully and believes in his fellows at 3 a. m. gives a person low in spirits new courage. Any man can have faith at 10 o'clock in the sunshine of a gallant morning!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

It's the Man on the Flying Trapeze Who Gets 'Em!

I've a bunch of records. When I'm blue, I play 'em.

Want to know what record I play when I'm bluest of all?

Want to know the record that yanks me back again, when I'm completely sunk—puts a backbone in me, when I'm soggy as an old bath sponge—sets me laughing, sets me singing, sets me hitting the highway again on all 16?

Give you three guesses what it is!

Something grand and solemn, from Wagner or Beethoven?

Something bright and lilty, from Sullivan or Mozart?

Something soft and sobby, from the days of the Gibson Girls—"Love's Old Sweet Song" or "Silver Threads Among the Gold"?

No, you're wrong. It's none of these. Nothing gorgeous—nothing classy—nary a heart throb—not even refined.

The tune that gets me going again, when I am blue is just that buoyant, low-brow blat:

"THE MAN ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE!"

Know that boy? Who doesn't!

He wasn't famous. He wasn't bright. And his standards weren't all that they should be! But he had a way with him—that lad!

He had a talent that outsmarted all the Heavy Intellects, and made the Cautious Citizens look like paper weights. For while they are making elaborate preparations to get under way, and weighing the why's and wherefore's—

THE LAD ON THE TRAPEZE TOOK OFF!

"He could fly through the air with the greatest of ease"—

It wasn't safe—flying through the air. It was probably not always convenient.

BUT HE TOOK A CHANCE, WHILE THE OTHER FELLOW WAS THINKING ABOUT IT—AND, AS A CONSEQUENCE, HE LANDED ALL THE PRIZES.

Not an arty song—nor a refined one — nor, maybe, particularly moral. And yet I'm thinking there's a great lesson in it for all of us who are wondering how to tackle life in these topsy-turvy days.

Where are the road maps and what are the rules for life today? There aren't any. But there's one technique you can bet on! It won't be safe. It won't be comfortable. It will land you in many a mess—and many a time leave you lonely, and wishing you hadn't started it. But, if you'll risk it, it will keep you young and eager, warm and free, envied and followed.

And what's that technique?

Just the brave old, gay old technique of TAKING CHANCES! BEING MOBILE! FACING THINGS AS THEY COME, AND FLOWING WITH THEM, INSTEAD OF FLOPPING!

MAKING A TRAPEZE—INSTEAD OF A TRAP—OUT OF LIFE!

"He could fly through the air with the greatest of ease."

And the whole world followed!

Well—what's holding YOU?

ISN'T IT SO?

The gift of gab causes many a man to give himself away.

Opportunity never seems to knock except when we are extremely busy.

Some speeders hold optimistically to the notion that they can argue with a motor cop.

The world is full of a lot of things, including "dumbbells," who are 10 per cent bell and 90 per cent dumb.

In some ways a woman is smarter than a man. She can say yes and no at the same time and mean neither.

Human Side of the News

The Discovery of Fire and the Invention of the Wheel Led to Human Civilization

By Edwin C. Hill

ONE discovery and one invention gave the animal we call man dominion over the earth and all the waters therein. The discovery was fire. The invention was the wheel. Without them he would be in little better case today than the beasts of the field. We do not know how long ago, how far back in the dim recesses of Time, man learned how to make fire for himself—fire, with its warmth and light and its protection against the evil spirits of the night. It may have been as long ago as forty thousand years, perhaps a great deal longer ago.

We do not know how the discovery was made, but a fairly good guess can be ventured. Nature has been playing with fire for millions of years, long before man ever appeared on earth. She sent fire down from the clouds in the form of lightning. Bolts of celestial fire set trees aflame, ignited pools of oil that had welled up from the ancient sands. And at some time, away back in the misty ages before history was even written in stone, Man took the hint and borrowed Nature's fire for himself. Probably, and for hundreds or thousands of years, he was too dull of mind to create fire. He clung to the few glowing coals that had fallen into his hands, keeping them alive, never daring to let them go out. And then he learned to make fire by rubbing two sticks together, or by striking his bronze against his flint arrowhead.

* * *

Wheel Invented More Recently

THE wheel came much later, how much later, no one can say. At least ten thousand years ago. Some of our oldest records in stone are carved pictures of the wheel in its various uses. It was the wheel that built the Pyramids and established the great empires of antiquity. With both fire and the wheel, man came close to the gods, closer, perhaps, than they have ever liked. Fire and the wheel are the symbols of civilization today. Take them away and man would be more helpless in the twentieth century, A. D., than he was twenty thousand years ago.

Such thoughts are inspired by the appearance of a remarkable new book which has to do with both fire and the wheel. It's name, indeed, is "The Turning Wheel." It is really the story of transportation throughout the ages. The author is Arthur Pound, and the book is published by Doubleday, Doran & Co.

It's greater part is devoted to the evolution of the gasoline-driven automobile into a present day necessity, changing our entire social and economic life, and creating the largest of industries. It's title page records, also, that it is the story of the giant American motor-car building and distributing organization, known as General Motors, and it appears as General Motors celebrates the twenty-fifth year of its existence. Few topics are more fascinating than transportation, man's device, at first slow and clumsy, of getting himself and his possessions from place to place.

John Brisben Walker, and others, have worked out what might be called the progression of transportation. They start with the floating log, as the most likely and natural moving thing that the curious eye of primitive man may have fallen upon. And then they list the back of an animal, a moving animal, as suggesting to Og, and his wife, Ag, the idea of going from here to there.

And then the list goes along as follows: sledge down hill, horse-drawn sledge cart, though man or even dogs may have drawn the first sledges before horse or oxen were ever thought of, or even available; canoe, oxcart, oared-galley, sedan chair, sailing vessel, canal, man-powered carriage, sailing chariot, coach and carriage, velocipede, free balloon, steam carriage, steamship, railroad, bicycle, cable car, electric trolley car, automobile, airplane and airship.

There you have it—man stumbling along in his dull way from one thing to another, and the strangest fact of all is that he never thought of using his first great gift of fire, his very first possession, along with his newer gift of the wheel, until only a few years ago, not much more than 130 years ago.

* * *

Roger Bacon's Prediction

OF course, there were veritable geniuses who played with the idea of hitching fire to the wheel long before that. The great Italian, Da Vinci, had the notion. Nine hundred years ago Roger Bacon, the Friar, made a prophecy to which no one paid the least attention. He said:

"It will be possible to construct chariots so that without animals, they may be moved with incalculable speed."

But even Bacon had to be careful about such talk. It led to prison, or to worse, because human being in those days had an idea that it was a device of the Devil and against the will of God to change the standing order of things.

Three hundred years ago, a pair of Englishmen had a patent for drawing carts without horses, and an Italian came forward with a steam turbine. And then, of course, that great intellect, Sir Isaac Newton, played with the idea and suggested a means of propelling vehicles by jets of steam. It was the canny Scot, James Watt, who is generally regarded as the inventor of the steam engine, although he had several predecessors. And it is almost thrilling to recall that France, in the old Royalist days, and again, under the Emperor Napoleon, had one of those chances to dominate the world that seldom, if ever, comes to a single nation.

A Captain Nicholas Joseph Cugnot invented an artillery gun tractor, run by steam. It traveled at three miles an hour, but on the second trial upset, and the fickle and very stupid government of King Louis laughed the captain out of court and Paris. Twenty years later, when Napoleon came to power, he recalled Cugnot and tried to revive the project, but apparently lost interest in it, and in doing so, lost Europe, just as his failure to adopt Robert Fulton's boat lost him the conquest of England.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Among your New Year's resolutions was there one to be more liberal and tolerant toward others and their frailties?

You may be in a position where no one in daily contact with you is privileged to speak to you frankly about your weaknesses.

Therefore you may have the erroneous idea that you have but few traits obnoxious to others.

Because those in daily contact with you must refrain from directing your attention to your errors, you begin to have the opinion that you seldom make mistakes.

But you do make many errors in judgment, as well as in other ways.

Fortunately, you have about you, those who are watchful for your interests; otherwise, some of the errors you make would mean ridicule, loss of money and prestige.

If you are as fair in your judgment of others as you are favorable concerning yourself, you will not be so heartless in your treatment of those who, at times, fail to come up to your expectations.

Everyone makes mistakes sometimes, so be more charitable in prodding others.

Let Congress Subpena Farley, Roper and Son

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IF Congress does its full duty by the American people, it will not permit its several investigations of the tragic fate which has befallen American aviation to end with the cancellation of all domestic air mail contracts, without due process of law, and with the needless sacrifice of the lives of 11 officers of the Army Air Corps.

These costly blunders ought to mark the beginning of a fearless, honest and untrammeled investigation that will explore the causes and evaluate the effects of the debauching of American aviation to the exigencies of partisan politics and the aggrandizement of special interests in the last nine months.

Congress should begin at the beginning, and this can best be done by a joint committee of the two houses instructed to conduct an inquiry solely in the public interest.

Such an inquiry should start with the so-called reorganization of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, which Secretary Roper began as soon as the last session of Congress adjourned.

Such an inquiry should include those divisions of the Postoffice Department that are charged under the law with the administration of the federal air mail.

* * *

Should Explore Underground Hookups

SUCH an inquiry should explore the underground political hookups between the air mail divisions of the Postoffice Department and the Democratic National Committee and between the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce and the Democratic National Committee.

Such an inquiry should include all the data that the Secretary of State can place at its disposal regarding the amount of money that foreign governments are expending in the federal city through crudely camouflaged subsidiaries to discredit American aviation abroad and to disrupt its organization at home.

Such an inquiry should trace the scheme to bring about the cancellation of all domestic air mail contracts, upon the unproven allegation that they were obtained by collusion and fraud, to its original sources.

Such an inquiry should explore and expose the number and identity of all disgruntled because unsuccessful bidders for air mail contracts and their lawyers and employes now employed by the Postoffice Department, by the Department of Commerce, or by other executive departments of the government.

And last but not least in importance, such an inquiry should lay before the public the names and affiliations of every endorser of the political appointees now in control of the air mail division of the Postoffice Department and of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce.

* * *

Three Men Who Should Be Called

BY summoning three witnesses a joint committee of the Congress should be able to obtain complete information regarding "who's who" among the political and other sponsors of Secretary Roper's appointees to the aeronautics branch, and Postmaster General Farley's past and present appointees to the air mail divisions of the Postoffice Department.

These three witnesses are:

The chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Farley, who is also Postmaster General, and under the law, is charged as Postmaster General with the whole responsibility for the administration of the federal air mail.

The Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Roper, who is given the exclusive authority and responsibility under the law for the development and regulation of civil aeronautics.

And the executive secretary of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Roper's son, who has maintained a close liaison with all members of the Democratic National Committee and with Democratic senators and representatives in Congress whose endorsements have in such large number dominated the appointment of the subordinate officials in both the Postoffice and Commerce departments to whom the administration of the Federal air mail and the regulation of civil aeronautics have been entrusted by the responsible officers under the law—by the Postmaster General and the Secretary of Commerce.

It is high time that Congress adjourned politics long enough to turn on the light and keep it turned on until the blame for the sad fate that has overtaken American aviation in recent weeks has been clearly fixed.
